VANGUARD SATELLITE POISED FOR FIRING

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP)—Increased activity and improved weather indicated today another new missile firing is imminent here—possibly a second Vanguard satellite launching effort.

Lights have flooded the slender moon-carrying Vanguard rocket since a ground test a week ago.

Parade Ground Like Lake as General Inspects Pats

First formal inspection here of the First Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, was held today on a wet parade square at Work Point Barracks. Inspecting officer was Major-General.

Bloody Revolt Ousts Venezuela Dictator

flees country

CARACAS, Venezuela (UP)—Military and civilian forces overthrew the dictatorship of President Marcos Perez Jimenez in a blood revolution early today and sent him fleeing into exile. But fighting continued in the centre of the city at mid-day.

A military junta, which took over from the deposed president's regime after two days of bloody street fighting by civilians led by a newspaper reporter named Fabricio Ojeda, sent its armed forces against secret police headquarters in the heart of Caracas.

The new fighting threatened to add to the casualties of the past two days that already had mounted to an estimated 200 killed and 1,000 injured.

The secret police building

became the focus of the revolt after the new junta headed by Rear-Adm. Wolfgang Larrazabal ordered political prisoners freed and a number of other reforms instituted immediately.

More than 1,000 political prisoners were turned loose. But when a crowd converged on the secret police headquarters, a die-hard group of security agents who apparently had decided to fight rather than surrender opened fire. Four persons were killed. A crowd of 10,000 tried to rout the secret policemen.

Troops Attack Secret Agents

The junta's armed forces then were brought up. Heavy machine gun and rifle fire broke out between army units and the secret police agents barricaded inside their headquarters.

The attacking army units were unable immediately to dislodge the secret police, who apparently decided not to give up in fear the revengeful crowds would seek to take things into their own hands.

The army asked for air support, and it looked as though air force planes would bomb and strafe the building unless the beleaguered security agents came out.

National Guard forces co-operated with the army in trying to clear the civilian demonstrators from the area so that the air attack could begin.

Perez Jimenez, his family and his aides, reached safety in Ciudad Trujillo, capital of the Dominican Republic. His nearly 10 years of dictatorial power were at an end.

The fate of former Argentine dictator Juan D. Peron, who was given refuge by Perez Jimenez, was not immediately clear, although the new government was expected to kick him out of Venezuela.

OTTAWA (BUP)—The external affairs department said today it had received no report of Canadian injuries in this morning's Venezuelan uprising.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

Father God, I am grateful to-day that through Christ's triumph I need no longer fear death. But love and sorrow seem to go together, and I find it hard to overcome the sorrow that is mine because a dear one has died. Help me today to develop a stronger faith so that life and death may have meaning for me in the pattern of Christian triumph. Amen.

NEW ATTEMPT FRIDAY TO END PULP STRIKE

Fourth attempt to settle the province-wide pulp strike which entered its 11th week today will be made Friday.

John Sherman, vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers, announced this morning in Vancouver that negotiations will reopen.

Curb Union Abuses Ike Asks Congress

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today urged Congress to curb "corruption, racketeering and abuse of trust and power in the labor-management field." He made the recommendation in a proposal for legislation.

Eisenhower recommended specifically that unions be subject to loss of legal bargaining status if they do not file true and proper data on their finances and other subjects.

Against a background of congressional inquiries disclosing abuses in the labor-management field, Eisenhower called for legislation "to benefit and protect the welfare of American workers and the general public."

He added it should "curb abuses," and provide greater harmony and stability in labor-management relations.

Labor leaders contend the program goes too far and management spokesmen say it does not go far enough.

LIQUOR EARNS $25 MILLION FOR PROVINCE

Liquor continues to be one of the province's biggest money-makers.

Public accounts tabled in the legislature today show the Liquor Control Board made a net profit of $25,048,630 in the fiscal year ended last March 31.

This represents an increase of almost $2,500,000 over the previous year.

Total sales during the 1956-57 fiscal year were $88,201,269. This was made up of $63,118,245 in sales to the public and $25,083,023 to licensees.

Atom Fuel To Compete With Coal

HAMILTON (CP)—The nuclear energy division of Canadian Westinghouse Limited Wednesday night disclosed plans of an atomic reactor which it says will help make nuclear power competitive with coal.

The reactor, designed by the division and ready for production uses raw uranium for fuel instead of the enriched uranium usually used in similar reactors.

V. V. Mason, division manager, said the design could produce power as little as 6.5 mills a kilowatt hour, compared with four to five mills for present coal-operated systems.

It was a major stride to bringing nuclear power to a position where it might be competitive with coal.

B.C. Collected Record Revenues

Record revenues of $270,783,792 were collected by the provincial government in the fiscal year ended last March 31, the public accounts tabled in the legislature today disclosed.

This represented an increase of $43,530,418 over the 1955-56 fiscal year.

The public accounts given no clue to the state of the government's revenues in the current year, but it is almost certain they will not have accelerated at the same rate.

All eyes will be focussed on the budget to be brought down by Premier Bennett in a few weeks' time, when the controller-general's report will give an accounting of revenues for the first nine months of the current year.

There is increasing evidence that the general slump in the economy during 1957 was felt by the government, particularly in its revenue from the forest industry.

NEW CHIEF JUSTICE?

Member of the B.C. bar since 1919, Thomas G. Norris, prominent Vancouver lawyer, is one of two men being considered by Prime Minister Diefenbaker for appointment as chief justice of British Columbia. It was reported from Ottawa today. Name of the second person was not revealed. The post has been vacant since Jan. 1 when Chief Justice Gordon Sloan resigned to become forestry adviser to the B.C. government.

LIABILITIES UP

The public accounts showed an increase of $100,000,000 in the government's contingent liabilities during the 1956-57 fiscal year.

These are borrowings of agencies such as the B.C. Power Commission, PGE and Toll Highways and Bridges Authority which are guaranteed by the government.

The total of these liabilities stood at $241,334,638 at last March 31.

During the 1956-57 year the direct debt was decreased by $27,727,470 and fixed assets were increased by $61,395,561 for an improvement of $85,668,091 in the balance sheet.

From the $270,000,000 in revenues, $14,343,996 went to fixed debt charges, $158,672,344 for current services, $31,984,533 for hospital insurance service, and $62,916,130 for capital expenditure out of income.

This left a revenue surplus of $6,812,505 for the year, which together with a withdrawal of $8,187,494 from the revenue surplus account enabled a supplementary sinking fund instalment of $15,000,000.

Reuther Plan Backed

DETROIT (AP)—The United Auto Workers today overwhelmingly approved Walter P. Reuther's proposal to make a profit-sharing plan the union's main bargaining goal in 1958.

Under the compromise, Judge Letts retains jurisdiction over the suit brought by 13 New York area dissident members of the union alleging that Hoffa's election was rigged.

Rival lawyers termed the settlement beneficial to the public and to the general membership of the teamsters.

Hoffa to Take Office As Injunction Lifted

WASHINGTON (AP)—A compromise settlement of a suit today paved the way for James R. Hoffa to take office immediately as president of the teamsters union.

Federal District Judge F. Dickinson Letts dissolved a temporary injunction barring Hoffa from taking over as head of the union.

The judge also approved a proposal worked out by opposing lawyers to set up a "board of monitors" to watch over affairs of the union.

Under the compromise, Judge Letts retains jurisdiction over the suit brought by 13 New York area dissident members of the union alleging that Hoffa's election was rigged.

Rival lawyers termed the settlement beneficial to the public and to the general membership of the teamsters.

Public Schools, Municipal Acts To Be Revamped

By PETER MURRAY
Times Legislative Reporter

More provincial aid for B.C. cities and municipalities was pledged by the government today in the Speech from the Throne read at the opening of the new legislative session.

The Speech, read by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, contained no surprises.

It told of the government's legislative program for the session, including forecast amendments to the Forestry Act, Public Schools Act and Municipal Act.

No hint was given what form the new aid to municipalities will take. One likelihood is increased financial contributions by the provincial government toward development of main roads.

The Speech, written by Premier Bennett, disclosed the government will submit a revised Public Schools Act at this session.

Following the appointment last week of a three-man royal commission to inquire into the B.C. education system, there was speculation the government might put off the revision until the commission report was received.

Reorganization of the provincial jail system this year as the result of the opening of the Haney Correctional Institution was forecast in the Speech.

One of the changes planned by the government is believed

Throne Speech Highlights

1. More aid to municipalities.
2. New forestry legislation.
3. Reorganization of provincial jail system.
4. Revision of Public Schools Act.
5. Changes to Municipal Act.
6. Revision of municipal employees superannuation plan.

to be abolition of the New Haven Borstal Home.

Also to be submitted to the legislature this session will be proposals to increase the province's vocational and apprenticeship education program.

Adequate Pensions for City Workers

The Municipal Superannuation Act will be amended at this session.

"This legislation will enable realistic and adequate superannuation allowances for municipal employees upon their retirement from municipal service."

Amendments will also be made to the Public Services Medical Plan Act for government employees, which was proclaimed last summer.

"Bugs" in the new Municipal Act which showed up after it was hastily pushed through at the last session will be dealt with.

One change is expected to see the regulation of store closing hours given back to the municipalities.

The Throne Speech said the government intends at this session to implement "certain recommendations" of the Sloan Royal Commission report on forestry.

One is expected to include the creation of regional boards and a central advisory council to assist the government on forestry matters.

The government has already started this program with the appointment of Gordon Sloan as $50,000-a-year forestry adviser, in which position he would serve as chairman of the advisory council.

Sloan Appointment To Be Hot Topic

The Sloan report and his subsequent appointment are expected to be the hottest subjects at this session.

On the unemployment problem, which the CCF will also raise during the session, the Throne Speech said:

"My government will, on their own, and in co-operation with the national and municipal governments, do everything possible to increase employment and to assist those who, through reasons beyond their control cannot find employment."

The speech said "tight money" is continuing to have a harmful effect on the economy.

The government expects this year to receive the Crippen-Wright engineering study on the hydro potential of the Columbia River, the Throne Speech disclosed.

TWO NEW MLAS SPEAK FRIDAY

Two new Social Credit members in the provincial legislature will make their maiden speeches in the House Friday.

William Speare (SC-Cariboo) will move the reply to the Speech from the Throne, and Dr. Gordon Gibson (SC-Delta) will be the second.

Heavy Snow Stalls Trains in Scotland

LONDON (AP)—Two passenger trains were stalled today by snowdrifts in Scotland, and naval and air force helicopters stood ready to take help to isolated villages as the severe cold wave continued in Britain.

One train was stalled near Banff and another was held up between Maud and Fraserburgh.

There passengers remained in the cars, which are heated, and were able to get food from a hotel.

PANIC, HEROISM IN CHICAGO APARTMENT FIRE

'Babies Fell Like Raindrops'

CHICAGO (AP)—A fire and explosion spread havoc through a crowded south side apartment building early today and in the frenzy to escape many children were dropped from windows of the four-storey building.

One infant died and at least six other children were unaccounted for. One man also was missing. At least 21 were injured, including nine children.

"The babies were falling like raindrops," said Jack McMillan, 31, who rushed to the scene where he said he caught five children dropped from windows. He fractured a thumb while catching one child.

There were numerous stories of heroism. One tenant, L. D. Dixon, 30, dropped to the ground from the third floor, then caught his wife, Albertina, 27, and their seven-year-old son.

Harvey Lawrence, 30, threw his six children one after another into arms of spectators, and then rescued nine other children by dropping them from a window.

U.K. Cabinet Faces New Split

Proposed Cut in Welfare Program Sparks New Row Among Ministers

LONDON (Reuters)—A new split was reported in Prime Minister Macmillan's government today over costs of Britain's welfare program.

...TARIFFS

has grown in stature, she will be for many years "highly sensitive" to downs in the American business cycle.

On other fronts it said that international unions with U.S. headquarters dominate the Canadian labor scene; that Canadian wages generally are about one-quarter less than those in the U.S.; that Canada is about 20 or 30 per cent behind the U.S. in generating wealth; and that compared with the advantages, the disadvantages of growing U.S. investment in Canada are not great. But while indicating that Canada may tend to "catch up" with the U.S. in the accumulation of wealth, the report had some sharp things to say about present American commercial policy.

TARIFF OBSTACLE

It criticized American handling of its tariff laws and said that on some consumer goods the United States tariff is 100 per cent of the product's value.

The high American tariff, aimed particularly at manufactured products, tended to force some plants to be located in the United States rather than in Canada.

"... It is the tariff obstacle which has had the greatest disruptive impact on Canadian economic growth."

Many Canadian manufacturers had to be content to supply only the relatively small Canadian market.

"Being geared, accordingly, to the needs of a comparatively small market, they labor under the cost disadvantages inherent in short and non-specialized production runs."

"The basic effect of United States commercial policy, therefore, has been to deprive potentially significant Canadian industries of the scale economies which would make a vital contribution to their competitiveness in world markets."

SOVIETS FORCE CHANGE

But the situation might change. There was a tendency in the U.S. to look towards more generous treatment of foreign producers. The U.S. had a position to maintain in the Western world.

Soviet economic power had increased at such a "remarkable pace as to call into question the traditional assumption of the automatic and indefinite maintenance of Western economic supremacy."

"Indeed the time for bold Western measures on the economic front may be fast approaching and it is difficult to see how the U.S.—given its overwhelming economic power and an understanding of the political and economic facts of international life—can long avoid taking the lead with strong unilateral easing of the conditions of access to the American market."

But that was only a long-range look. This did not preclude American protectionism gaining strength in the next few years.

On American farm policies, the report said the entrenched position of the American farm bloc, the magnitude of American surpluses and continuing high production "lend strong support to the view that over the short run at least, Canada may expect to trade in world agricultural markets increasingly distorted by U.S. farm policies."

Canada could "realistically expect the threat of further market losses in overseas countries as well as in the U.S." and the uncertainty of the future could impose "additional limitations on the production results achieved by Canadian farmers."

"Difficult adjustments are likely to confront Canadian agriculture in the next few years as consequence of U.S. agricultural policy."

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuters)—Britain's Prime Minister Macmillan told New Zealand leaders today that the Commonwealth, by its multi-racial partnership, can help bridge the gap between competing sections of the world.

But "almost everything" depends on the maintenance of the closest co-operation between the Commonwealth and the United States, he said.

Macmillan was speaking at a state luncheon on his first full day in the New Zealand capital.

Churchill Paintings Premiered in U.S.

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Thirty-five oil paintings by Sir Winston Churchill went on display Wednesday in the first collective exhibit of the works of the former British prime minister. This was the premiere showing in a nine-city tour of the United States and Canada. It took a personal appeal from President Eisenhower to persuade Churchill to allow public exhibition of his work.

Press Protests Liberal Parley 'Muzzle'

OTTAWA (CP)—The executive of the parliamentary press gallery has unanimously protested to Duncan MacTavish, chairman of last week's national Liberal convention, withholding of the result of the leadership vote until he could announce it during a television broadcast.

A letter from Victor J. Mackie, gallery president, said, "The executive instructed me, on behalf of the gallery, to protest against the withholding of the Liberal leadership voting results, at the recent national convention, in the interests of television broadcasting and without regard for the earliest possible dissemination of news of national importance."

The Canadian Press earlier made a vigorous verbal protest to Mr. MacTavish. Subsequently, a number of Canadian newspapers have commented editorially on the news-withholding incident.

Blaze Kills 2 Firemen Under Huge U.K. Mart

LONDON (AP)—Two firemen were killed today fighting a stubborn blaze in a maze of tunnels underneath the huge Smithfield meat market in central London.

Eight others were carried out unconscious, overcome by thick, fatty smoke despite the breathing apparatus all were wearing.

The centre of the fire was a 2½-acre labyrinth of underground passageways in the basement of the Union Cold Storage Company building.

Smithfield Market houses most of the meat which feeds London's millions.

Wood impregnated with fat smouldered along many yards of corridors, and crates of turkeys and other poultry, stacked from floor to ceiling, sputtered in the intense heat.

The two firemen who died collapsed as they struggled to get past the tightly packed crates.

Firemen hosed so much water into the flame-filled labyrinth of corridors that many fire-fighters faced danger from drowning.

Ten hours after the blaze began, flames were still leaping 20 feet from the entrances of the corridors.

Verbal Punches Fly During Farm Debate

(From Times News Services)

OTTAWA—The continuing debate on the government's farm prices stabilization bill is beginning to sound like a boiler-maker's shindig.

So far no one has lost his temper, but the verbal punches tossed back and forth Wednesday—fifth day of general debate on the measure—were pretty sharp.

There was a main event between a couple of Saskatchewaners: Resources Minister Alvin Hamilton and Hazen Argue, CCF whip.

It started when Mr. Argue cocked a suspicious eyebrow at Mr. Hamilton's argument that the bill does all that the Progressive Conservatives promised farmers before the last election.

'Lot of Bull'

"A lot of bull from a bull frog," Mr. Argue barked in.

"The Honorable member is an authority on the sort of thing he has just mentioned," Mr. Hamilton fired back.

He said Mr. Argue reported that Western farmers promised a march on Ottawa to protest against the measure. He added that when he asked Prairie farmers about that they told him: "You know that guy—he's always shooting off at the mouth."

Mr. Hamilton described the CCF as a party that "breathes suspicion, lives suspicion and preaches suspicion."

Mr. Argue charged that the bill is "political window dressing," and attacked the provision whereby Agriculture Minister Harkness would be empowered to set farm support prices, expressed as a percentage of a 10-year moving price average.

This, he said, could mean that the minister could fix high prices in election years and lower prices at other times.

"The farmers of Western Canada are sick to death of political prices," Mr. Argue said.

Would Kill Bill

There is likely to be more of this as the debate continued today. The CCF has moved an amendment which would kill the bill this session and refer the whole question to the Commons' agriculture committee.

There were other skirmishes Wednesday.

Auguste Maltais (L., Charlevoix) said there appears to be a "conspiracy of silence" on the measure among Quebec Progressive Conservatives.

Roland English (PC, Gaspé) objected, saying he spoke earlier in the debate.

"Well," replied Mr. Maltais in French, "if he had spoken louder he would have been heard."

He described the measure as "straight plagiarism" of existing price support legislation enacted in 1944 under a Liberal government, and accused Mr. Harkness of fearing to tread new paths by adjusting prices to production costs rather than to market prices.

Shabby Performance

Walter Tucker (L., Rosthern), a leading Liberal farm spokesman, described the bill as "a shabby performance" that does not give Western farmers the same possible assistance on oats and barley as existing legislation. He said he will vote against it.

Mr. Tucker's statement appeared to strengthen speculation that the Liberal opposition, which so far this session has supported all government legislation, may bolt on the farm bill.

Mr. Tucker, member for Rosthern, is former Liberal leader in Saskatchewan and currently is chairman of the Liberal Commons caucus.

The bill would allow the minister to set price supports for all farm products, except grains handled by the Canadian Wheat Board. It would provide a minimum floor of 80 per cent of the 10-year average price on nine specific commodities: cattle, hogs, sheep, butter, cheese, eggs and non-Prairie wheat, oats and barley.

J. Armand Landry (L., Dorchester) said the bill is "nefarious" in that it would guarantee supports for only 12 months in advance. Butter producers and others needed a longer period of assured prices to plan production properly.

J. H. Harrison (L., Meadow Lake) said the bill would be political suicide for Progressive Conservatives in farm constituencies.

J. A. Smith (SC-Battle River-Camrose) attacked the government for not giving farmers

After the First Round

AFTER THE DRAMATIC events of this week's opening days in Parliament, Canadians have an opportunity to stand back and assess the actual meaning of the exchanges between Mr. Pearson and Mr. Diefenbaker.

They have seen the new Liberal leader make good his pledge to show the Prime Minister that he had a fight on his hands. They have seen Mr. Diefenbaker meet attack with attack. From the first round Mr. Diefenbaker emerges leading on points. But he has established no apparent lead in strategy.

Mr. Pearson spelled out his want-of-confidence motion in terms— he knew would be unacceptable to other opposition groups and hence would not pass. His intent was clear.

The Liberals did not want to defeat the Government and give it an excuse to escape the consequences of its policies, or lack of policies. Nor did the Liberals wish to hasten to the people with inadequate time to reorganize after their defeat last June and their recent selection of a new leader.

Mr. Diefenbaker met the sharp criticism which preceded the motion in the role of a happy warrior. He gave better than he took and enhanced his reputation as a robust fighter.

But the exchanges have done nothing to improve the Conservatives' approach to the big problem before them. That problem is obvious.

Mr. Diefenbaker can call for the dissolution of Parliament at any time he wants. Unless he finds some valid reason or colorable excuse for that action, however, he risks public displeasure over the cost, inconvenience and disruption of national affairs that an election brings.

Mr. Pearson, it is evident, is not disposed to give him that excuse.

On the other hand, if Mr. Diefenbaker waits until the chickens of last year's Conservative election campaign come home to roost under the darkening skies of higher unemployment and a dip in national prosperity, his party's popularity will unquestionably be endangered.

The Government should not, of course, be blamed for the rise in unemployment, and a slackening in the great Canadian boom. Mr. Pearson and his colleague, Mr. Paul Martin, have made that point clear. The Liberal attack is not based on such grounds. It is based on the Conservatives' lack of measures to improve conditions.

The oratory of the last few days in Ottawa has been stimulating, even if rough at times. But oratory does not fill lunch buckets or send men out to work.

Mr. Diefenbaker is still left pondering the advisability of calling an election before the public becomes more sharply aware of that, or of waiting hopefully for a more favorable climate in which to launch his appeal.

He cannot escape the precarious position of a minority government, nor the inevitable pragmatism of voters who will eventually form judgments on results more than on speeches.

New Battle of Okinawa

IN THE LATE SPRING OF 1945, Okinawa was a vital target of the United States forces fighting their grim way to victory in the Pacific.

For that strategic island, the American army paid 7,000 lives. Another 30,000 men were wounded. The cost to the enemy was infinitely more—101,853 killed, 7,902 prisoners of war.

When surrender terms were dictated, the island became occupied territory, a vital link in the defensive chain of the Asiatic Pacific.

Since that time military rule has kept the inhabitants amenable to United States' policy.

But the Okinawans have been restive under military rule. They showed their restiveness when thoughtlessness on the part of the military government in 1956 caused dissension among the conservative native element which had supported the United States' authorities. The conservatives were not consulted on an important civil appointment. From irritation they passed to squabbling among themselves. While they were squabbling an extreme leftist slipped between their divided ranks to become mayor of Naha, capital of Okinawa.

Eventually, in November of last year, a scheme was evolved to unseat the mayor and new elections were called. Last week another mayor was elected. While not labelled a communist, the new head of civil government, Saichi Kaneshi, is an avowed anti-American leftist. He is, moreover, a highly vocal advocate of Okinawa's early return to Japanese sovereignty.

The United States, in consequence, finds itself in the embarrassing position of applying military government in its largest military defence centre west of Honolulu to a people who have demonstrated at the civil polls their faith in forces which are anti-American.

It has been argued in some circles that Okinawa is no longer the vital link it was once in the defence chain. If that argument is pursued, it could lead to questions about other major island communities considered immensely important from a defence point of view. It might, eventually, extend to the two-Chinas theory with interesting developments.

But whatever else it does, the events of Naha's mayoralty election indicate certain weak spots in American military rule and more difficulties for the United States. One more problem has been added to the list piling up for the leaders of western defence.

What's Wrong at Brannan?

THREE YEARS AGO BRITISH Columbians interested in the treatment of boys convicted on charges of delinquency looked hopefully to the newly opened Brannan Lake School as this province's most impressive effort to restore the erring young people to good citizenship.

Today, mounting complaint from Nanaimo casts grave doubts on the success of this experiment. The city closest to the school protests the trouble and expense to which it is put recapturing boys who walk out of the institution.

One Nanaimo alderman contends that juvenile delinquency in that city would drop 90 per cent if it were not for Brannan Lake boys on the loose. The same council member says women are afraid to walk downtown at night because of hoodlums, and that the RCMP Nanaimo force is kept busy chasing escapees from the school.

To these reports can be added accounts of serious offenses by boys committed to the school who have broken out and continued their waywardness, in some cases adding violence to theft.

No reasonable person expects quick conversion for inmates of Brannan Lake. But the public had been led to believe that the system to be employed there would yield gratifying results in rehabilitation.

Now the public, with interest stimulated by Nanaimo reports, wants to know if the experiment is unsuccessful. The taxpayers should be told.

The public deserves a frank statement of conditions at Brannan Lake, a report on the percentage of boys who have benefited from treatment there, and an explanation of the apparent inability of the school to achieve the purpose expected of it.

Is the theory on which Brannan was established at fault? Is the accommodation so overcrowded that treatment breaks down? Are there inadequacies in staff, quantitative or qualitative?

These are questions to which the Provincial Government should give answers through the departments concerned.

Fleeing Bed-Sheets

NORTH CAROLINA STATE troopers were called the other night to break up a demonstration of Indians near Maxton who had put Ku Klux Klan members to flight with well-timed rifle and shotgun volleys over the bed-sheet brigade's heads.

Public sympathy may be extended to the Indians. They had warned the Klansmen not to touch off any more fiery crosses or pursue their attempts at terrorizing natives who fraternized with whites.

The men who wear robes and hoods because they are afraid to be identified, showed that they were also afraid of force when it threatened them.

Perhaps they have learned a salutary lesson.

The North Carolina Klan apparently does not stand up under fire—and who thought it would? It has seemingly been saved by the forces of law and order in the form of state troopers. And all the Klansmen have proved is that violence begets violence, a point they should remember if they want to save their own skins, or bed linen.

MR. A. deB. McPhillips (Victoria): Mr. Speaker, I note that the mover of this resolution is not in the house.

Some hon. Members: Yes he is.

Mr. Nicholson: If you cannot read better than you see, you would do well to sit down.

Mr. McPhillips: I was rather interested that he should have been the mover of this resolution because I always thought that the hon. member for Rosetown-Biggar (Mr. Coldwell) represented a group that favoured a police state. At least that was the impression I gained in British Columbia many years ago.

Mr. Nicholson: What are you reading from?

Mr. McPhillips: I am not reading from anything.

Mr. Nicholson: Yes you are.

Mr. McPhillips: I also note that the hon. member for Vancouver East (Mr. Winch) is not in his seat. He was quite a proponent, you know of the ...

Empty Saddles

Mr. Coldwell: Let the hon. gentleman look around his own group and see who are not in their seats.

Mr. Nicholson: Where is the Prime Minister?

Mr. McPhillips: I can, if necessary, appeal for the protection of the chair but I am not going to do it. I notice that the hon. member for Vancouver East is not in his seat.

Mr. Nicholson: Where is the Prime Minister?

Mr. McPhillips: He, of course, was one who definitely suggested that if his group ever got into power—which thank heaven they did not—they were going to have a police state.

Some hon. Members: No.

Mr. Cameron: That is a lie. That is a deliberate lie.

Mr. McPhillips: This is something he said when he was the leader of the opposition in the legislature of British Columbia.

Mr. Cameron: That is a deliberate lie. Did you hear me? That is a deliberate lie.

Lost Fist

Mr. McPhillips: Where is the old mailed fist? Has it gone down the drain? Where is the regimentation and the absolute obedience they were going to demand from the public if they ever got into power? Apparently it has all gone down the drain. Now we find this group is deteriorating. No more is there the mailed fist. We have a mealy-mouthed resolution. It is the velvet glove. I am just wondering whether ...

Mr. Knowles (Winnipeg North Centre): How about the civil servants who do not trust?

Mr. McPhillips: ... there is any mailed fist in the velvet glove, or whether it is all mealy-mouthed nonsense. Who are they trying to fool?

I must say I approach this resolution with mixed feelings. I approve of much of it but I see its danger. I see the danger of circumscribing our liberties with pious language. That is the way to get your tail in the gate ...

I am in sympathy with the resolution but what I say is this. Why go to work and foul our nest with a mess of pottage? We do not need it. We have got it now. Let us not take a chance. We have inherited the best from our British institutions. We have it. Let us not make a mistake; let us not goof on the question and we could very easily. I suggest that we just string along with what we have now ...

Dead Horse

To my mind this discussion is like flogging a dead horse. There is no question about depriving anybody of their rights. Those rights exist, always will exist, and we will fight for them if we have to.

Mr. Stanley Knowles (Winnipeg North Centre): Mr. Speaker, I shall not attempt to follow the arguments of the hon. gentleman who has just taken his seat. Already at this session it has been demonstrated that he does not speak for his party. The acting Prime Minister, the Minister of Public Works (Mr. Green), made that clear on at least one occasion.

An hon. Member: It is a good thing he does not.

EXCITING PROSPECT

In the United States it has been assessed that by the use of isotopes American industry is saving 145 million pounds each year. This is an awful lot of money—even for Americans. In Britain no such assessment has been made yet, but there's no question that millions are saved by British industry annually by the use of radioactive materials ... You must admit that this is a very exciting prospect. Radioactivity may even give us a new way of life.

Canadian Priority

Reports list 386,000 unemployed in Canada. The Liberal government definitely went overboard on their immigration policies, adding a further burden to the long suffering taxpayer, flooding Canada with shiploads of unsuspecting hopefuls, aggravating an obvious situation. What ulterior motive they had, I'll never know.

Anyway, the damage is done and the Conservatives are holding the sack, plus unwarranted blame. It's a sorry mess but leave us face it. Guess the only policy left now is reciprocity; immigration in reverse. Ship all the unemployed back to England and Europe, first class passage, all expenses paid. Long resident Canadians who are unemployed should have priority in this scheme.

Fire Hall Costs

This summer I attended an excellent concert in Beacon Hill Park.

When the concert was over the lights on the stage were put out and we were left in total darkness. After stumbling over benches and into fir trees and ash cans we eventually reached the bus terminus.

A tourist and her little girl told us she was terrified that she would fall into one of the ponds and be drowned. When I notified the Parks Board I was informed it was a matter of dollars and cents.

I now read that the City intends to spend some $300,000 on a new fire hall just one block from where they already have one which was discarded to curtail expense, some five years ago. This hall sits on one side of a large piece of land at the top of Yates Street.

Why not put first things first. If the City found it necessary to tax the business man almost out of business in order to find money, why not spend it wisely. What right have they to waste one dollar let alone thousands.

No More Bench Warmers

(From Time Magazine, Jan. 26)

WHAT can be done about Joyce? In almost any other North American city except Calgary, Alta. (pop. 200,000), the question might never have been answered. Tenth Grader Joyce, 16, has an IQ of 130. But she failed three subjects last year, and her teachers loaded her report cards with such comments as

"No effort, boy friends, more interested in personal appearance than school work."

Counseling and conferences did not help; Joyce was an incorrigible shirker.

Her school's answer to her case: it simply threw her out.

In Calgary, the Joyces of the classroom are known as "homesteaders"—able Canadian students who refuse to work. By 1954 they had become so numerous that mild-mannered Superintendent Robert Warren decided that something drastic would have to be done. He consulted his school board, finally put through the now famous Calgary Plan.

In 1955 only ten shirkers were dropped. But as the plan became more firmly established, the number rose to 22 in 1956 and 34 in 1957.

The plan places an extra burden on the teachers. They must make absolutely sure that the laggard student has no emotional or mental block, that every effort is made to save him, and that he has the right of appeal. But for all that, the plan works.

Of those expelled, more than half have returned, and most are doing well. Joyce, for instance, has so far this year earned one H (the highest mark given), two As, three Bs.

Moreover, says Superintendent Warren, "achievement scores on twelfth grade examinations have gone up. It has become respectable in Calgary to be a serious student."

Last year nearby Medicine Hat (pop. 21,000) adopted the plan. Of ten students who got "laggard policy letters," five left school, but the rest began working so hard that they earned a special commendation.

Last month Sault Sainte Marie, Ont. announced that it, too, would follow the plan, and last week down in North Attleboro, Mass., letters went out to parents spelling out a new policy by which "intellectual loafers and bench warmers" are being dropped.

At a time of rising costs and the growing teacher shortage, the plan has its appeal. Says Calgary's Superintendent Warren: "In 1955 Calgary spent $344.29 on each high school pupil. The public cannot afford to provide such service to pupils who take an indifferent attitude toward their responsibilities."

Conflict of Loyalties

THE appointment of still another committee to consider yet again the reorganization of the defence department is, of course, a way of sweeping the whole problem temporarily under the rug. It certainly is not the "decisive central direction" in order to "end interservice disputes" which the President promised in his state of the union message. Even so, it may prove impossible to keep the problem under the rug. Sen. Stuart Symington, for example, is determined to make defence reorganization a major issue in this session.

Events themselves, including the mounting evidence that the present system just is not working, may aid him.

The issue is one, moreover, which involves not only billions of dollars, but possible victory or defeat in war.

Yet it is not the sort of issue most people understand, or care very much about. It thus seems worth trying to examine the issue in simple, human terms—for it is essentially a human issue.

Unhappy Position

Consider, then, the unhappy position in which the chief of staff of one of the services finds himself. In the nature of things, a chief of staff is subject to an insoluble conflict of loyalties.

As a member of the joint chiefs of staff, he attends the weekly JCS meeting as one of the three voting members. The joint chiefs are collectively assigned to "advise the President" on the whole range of American strategic planning. The JCS is thus an immensely powerful body, charged with a national responsibility wholly transcending service interests.

But except for the few hours he spends weekly at the JCS meetings, a chief of staff spends the rest of his time as operational commander and top dog of one of the services. As such, his natural instinct, and the instinct of all his subordinates, is to do everything possible to get a bigger share of everything—more men, more money, more missions—for his own service.

His subordinates—"Indians," they call them in the Pentagon—devote their most earnest efforts to preparing the chief to do battle to this end in the JCS meetings, buttressing his own arguments for more of everything, getting him ready to beat down the arguments of the other services.

Both as a professional soldier devoted to his service, and as a human being aware that his name in his own service would otherwise be mud, a chief of staff inevitably enters most JCS meetings in the mood of a knight entering the lists against two formidable opponents.

Thus the JCS has never really functioned as the national strategic planning board it was supposed to be. It has functioned instead—depending on the amount of money available—as a sort of polite bear pit, or as a mutual backscratching society.

The problem is infinitely complicated by the new weapons, which simply cannot be made to fit into the old air, ground, and sea categories. Nowadays, the chiefs enter the lists prepared to do battle, not only for more men, money and missiles, but for such things as anti-missiles, reconnaissance satellites, and space platforms.

Under the present insane system, moreover, there simply is no way to achieve real, national-minded strategic planning. The chairman of the chiefs has no vote, and is thus hardly more than a referee of the endless service hassles.

Limited Powers

The service secretaries inevitably tend to become more royalist than the king. The secretary of defence has severely limited powers, and he cannot know where all the bodies are buried. Congress cannot possibly perform the function of strategic planning. And the President has other things on his mind.

The results of the system are plain for all to see. The JCS has failed to do its strategic planning job in any rational way—incredibly, there does not even exist today a firmly agreed national war plan. Those best able to judge are convinced that, if a major war broke out tomorrow, the result would be chaos, with each service fighting its own private war.

Moreover, the country simply is not receiving a fair return on its investment in either military manpower or money, and it cannot possibly receive a fair return under the present system. Almost everybody who has examined the problem objectively—from former Army Chief of Staff D. D. Eisenhower on—has agreed that something must be done, and all sorts of solutions have been offered.

Basic Elements

But the basic elements of a solution are obvious. The joint chiefs must be absolutely divorced from their services, and there can be no question of any chief returning to his service. The chairman of the chiefs must be given real power, subject to the review of the President and the secretary of defence, and the defence secretary's power must also be increased and clearly defined.

In short, the power of decision belongs, not in a polite bear pit or mutual backscratching society, but in a chain of command totally divorced from selfish service interests, and exclusively devoted instead to national defence interests.

This would seem so obvious as to be hardly worth arguing about. Yet the vested interests in the present system are enormously powerful, which is of course why the whole problem has once again been shoved under the rug. (Copy, 1958 N.Y. Herald-Tribune Inc.)

The Long Walk

IT'S killing me to stay indoors and write a column today. I don't feel like writing. I feel like a rough tweed skirt with pockets, a light windbreaker, and a pair of old, sensible, comfortable shoes. I feel like putting on such garments and going for a good long walk.

But I don't want to walk on the island along rough trails where I have to watch my feet and keep my eyes cast down. I don't want to walk among the damp and shade of trees. I want to be out in the open and the sunshine, where I can see for miles and miles, and walk steadily and free for hours.

(Oh Lord, what a dreadful burst of British open-airness!)

It's partly the lovely morning, (Tuesday, as I write), and partly that I've just been looking through the Beautiful Britain Calendar for 1958.

Now there are some walks I'd like to take. Look at this picture, for instance. It's of the conical North Berwick Law (612 feet) in East Lothian.

I'd love to cross that field, and get over the low stone wall near that line of trees. From there, I'd take the footpath that winds around the hill. I suppose it's a sheep track, really. It has an easy grade and it's open all the way.

I'd like to go down this village street at Aldourne in Wiltshire and then go up among those fields. There'd be a stile and a path somewhere. There always is in Britain.

And here's another lovely walk by Exeat Farm in a fold of the Sussex Downs near Eastbourne. Look at the openness of it all, and the clean fresh downs with the cloud shadows on them.

Ruth

Remember what it was like to start out from Seaford Head, and walk past the Gap down to the Cuckmere. (Oh, the lovely Seven Sisters and the climb up to Beachy Head.)

Remember climbing up to Cissbury Ring, and doing the high free walk to Chantonbury. (White chalk mud on your shoes, and the rustle of dry beech leaves at Chantonbury.)

Remember the walks on Dartmoor and Exmoor when little wild ponies stood with their long tails blowing in the wind. Feel the short-cropped turf and the salt-laden wind as you walk by Merlin's Cove and think upon Tintagel.

Recall the Carding Mill Valley in Shropshire, and how when you climbed the hills beside the valley, the world stretched out for miles before you.

Remember the Lake District and the Yorkshire Moors.

Remember the White Horse of Hindover and where the Long Man of Wilmington "looks naked to the Shires."

No wonder that the British who come to Canada often long for the walks of home.

If we had such a lovely countryside, would we turn into a race of walkers?

Somehow, I think not.

But why not? Are the distances too great? Are we too lazy? Are we too conditioned to the automotive age?

I don't know. I only know that at this moment I'd sell my soul for a chance to walk in some of the places I can see in this calendar.

Quick now. Put it away. You must jump into the car and do that errand. No time to walk.

Maybe that's the secret. No time, in this age of leisure?

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

New Mental Hospitals

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic, and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

The other day, in Berkeley, California, I went with my good friend, Dr. A. E. Bennett, an able and forward-looking psychiatrist, through a large new wing of the Herrick General Hospital, a wing soon to be opened up. In it, Dr. Bennett and his colleagues will take care of many mentally disturbed patients.

As I went through an older wing of the hospital in which Dr. Bennett has been keeping his patients, I found most of them sitting about, resting or reading. Some were playing cards, and some of the more disturbed ones were lying quietly on their beds. As we went about, Dr. Bennett greeted in a friendly way all the patients, and most of them responded with friendliness. Some who didn't were just too shy or too reserved to say much or to look at anyone who was passing by.

As Dr. Bennett has long been pointing out, it will be a great day for psychiatry when all general hospitals will have a department in which they can take patients with mental troubles. They may not be able to take patients who are unmanageable, noisy or dangerous, but they should be taking those many commonly-seen types of patients who, for most of the time, are friendly and responsive and sensible. Many of these need hospitalization, largely to keep them from wandering about, or getting into trouble, or wasting all of the money their people can scrape together. In the hospital such a man (or woman) may seem normal, but if he goes out, he may get drunk, or he may become confused and frightened. In the hospital, he can be observed and treated every day, and with his doctor near, he may feel safe and protected.

AVOIDS STIGMA

One big reason for admitting slightly confused patients to a general hospital is that this avoids the terrible stigma of having been in a mental hospital. The patient and his relatives do not have to say what part of the hospital he was in. The new plan also gives psychiatrists a place in which they can treat private patients for a reasonable fee.

A month ago, while in Hartford, Connecticut, visiting with another friend, Dr.

Francis Braceland, who also is one of America's great psychiatrists, I was so interested in going through "The Institute of Living," the remarkable mental hospital over which he presides. There, I was pleased to see that in one division of the hospital the doors are not locked, and the patients live much as if they were in a college dormitory. When I was there most of them were busy working in one of another of the several shops. Some had discovered that they possessed a decided artistic talent. Occasionally, a patient goes out to have some fun in a bar, but soon one of the nurses finds him, and talks him into going back to his room.

As I went about the institute with Dr. Braceland I was impressed by the friendly way in which he greeted all the patients we met, and interesting to me was the happy way in which they greeted him. If I hadn't known that the place was a mental hospital, I could hardly have figured out what it was—everyone seemed so perfectly normal. This was doubtless because of the happy atmosphere of trust and respect.

Hopeful the present-day plan being adopted by a number of psychiatrists of letting certain patients go out to work during the day but having them return at night to the hospital. Others stay in the hospital during the day, getting treatment, but go home at night to their family.

DO IT QUICKLY

Readers may say, "But these people cannot be very insane." True; but here is the important point, as a fine psychiatrist said to me a while ago. "If you expect to cure a mentally disturbed man (or woman) get at the job quickly, before the fellow has had a chance to degenerate and become hopelessly confused or separated from reality. Help him while he will still talk to you sensibly, and while he still can reason logically." Too often today the person who is slightly disturbed is left untreated until he is so upset that he has to be locked up.

Mr. Mike Gorman is now emphasizing the great need for treating mental troubles when they show up, as they often do, in children. But in many areas there is no mental hospital in which a child can be treated. As Mr. Gorman says, in many a case, if a child's sanity could be saved so that he would not have to be kept in an institution for the rest of his life, enough money would be saved so that a children's psychiatric clinic could be built!

MANY PRIVILEGES

Citizenship Vital Step Aliens Told

Several thousand B.C. residents including hundreds on Vancouver Island can't vote despite the fact they may have lived here more than a decade. Inaction on their part and not restrictive regulations are to blame, Dr. William G. Black, B.C. regional liaison officer for the citizenship branch, said today.

"They are the aliens, including many who have lived here more than a decade, that never bothered to apply for citizenship," he said in an interview. Many of the people have contacted him in his Vancouver office seeking the franchise or a Canadian passport "only to be dismayed when they learn that you can't get a citizenship certificate in a matter of days or weeks."

Besides the franchise and passport privileges, citizenship offers many other benefits including the right to join the civil service or armed forces and in certain occupations, such as deep-sea fishing, the right to work, he pointed out.

"But the greatest benefit, especially for refugees, is the satisfaction of really belonging to their adopted country," he added. "This can give an invaluable sense of security."

He outlined the steps to be taken towards citizenship by aliens landed as immigrants:

1. After four years and nine months, application for citizenship can be made at the nearest court house.

2. Following posting of the application in the court house for three months, the alien is examined by a judge on the English language and citizenship.

3. Successful applicants can take the oath of allegiance in about a month, to become full-fledged Canadian citizens with the added status of a British subject and citizen of the Commonwealth.

ENGLISH COURSE Mr. Black said that an important preparation for citizenship is the course in English and citizenship available in night schools under direction of the provincial department of education.

"Completion of the course carries with it a certificate that can be shown to the examining judge," he said.

For British subjects, Canadian citizenship brings an additional status without loss of any previous privileges.

Except for those British subjects before Jan. 1, 1942, citizenship is not automatic. However, it can be obtained after five years' residence here by an application at the nearest court house.

No examination or posting of the application is required for a British subject.

'Belt Tightening' Price Of U.S. Space Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—Americans were called on today to "tighten our belts . . . perhaps for years to come" as a Senate subcommittee neared the end of its investigation of United States defence preparedness.

Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, leading Republican on the preparedness subcommittee, said in an interview that "there is no blinking away from the enormity of the task we face."

Bridges said the subcommittee hearings have developed information on "extremely impressive" Russian achievements that could not be "dismissed lightly."

However, the consensus, over-all military strength of the "shared by the best-informed United States is today superior witnesses, seems to be that the to that of the Soviet Union."

U.S. Economy Threatened Says Reuther

DETROIT (AP)—Walter P. Reuther told a special convention of the United Auto Workers Wednesday that big corporations are putting the United States economy in peril because "they take so much" in profits.

The UAW president said the union is proposing a profit-sharing plan because "millions of families lack purchasing power."

Keynoting the convention of 3,000 U.S. and Canadian delegates, Reuther said "we are fighting for realistic economic policies."

Earlier Reuther had invited General Motors president Harlow Curtice to appear before the convention to suggest to the union members how he believes they should shape their demands.

Reserve Lifted From Iron Ore

B.C. TO JOSH PROUD TEXANS

Gentle spoofing of Texan pride will be used to lure Americans to British Columbia during centennial year.

British Columbia Centennial Committee chairman L. J. Wallace revealed Wednesday night a New Yorker advertisement next month will tell why so few Texans venture into the province, 50 per cent larger than the Lone Star State.

"Because they get an inferiority complex."

Name Woman To Top Post In Orphanage

Mrs. Walter Holder became the first woman to hold a top executive position on the British Columbia Protestant Orphanage board of directors when she was elected vice-president at the annual meeting Tuesday.

The board has had a male vice-president since it began operation before 1890.

Mrs. Holder, the wife of Coun. Holder, of Esquimalt, is also president of the ladies' committee to the orphanage.

Executive members returned to office were president Edward Williams, secretary Charles Ellington and treasurer R. H. Shanks.

The orphanage suffered an operating loss of $21,928 in 1957—$5,000 more than the previous year, the meeting was told. Losses are usually regained through capital derived from legacies and bequests to the orphanage.

EARLY WARNINGS

Signs of ear trouble in infants should be given medical attention to avoid deafness in future years.

Movie Script Revised On B.C. Judge's Life

VANCOUVER (CP)—The National Film Board is shooting a revised version of its controversial film on the life of Sir Matthew Baillie Begbie, British Columbia's first judge.

Justice Minister Davie Fulton has informed Vancouver writer Mrs. D. Ogilvy Irving that the film's script has been rewritten with the new title "The Legendary Judge."

The original title, "The Hanging Judge," drew complaints from several B.C. historians when parts of the film were being shot here last year. They said the nickname was grossly inaccurate.

The provincial government has lifted its reserve on iron ore on the whole coastal area, including Vancouver Island.

The move has a two-fold aim: to encourage more exploration for iron properties, and at the same time control exports from the province.

Under terms of an order-in-council passed by the cabinet this week, prospectors are now free to hunt for iron ore.

However, they must record with the department the fact they are staking for iron when filing claims.

When a lease is granted, the government reserves the right to 50 per cent of the amount of ore in the property.

EXPORT RIGHTS

The operator is free to do anything he wants with the other half, including export.

The lease holder has the first right to mine and sell the Crown's share of the iron ore, subject to the approval of the minister of mines.

The new regulations are part of the government's continuing drive to have an iron and steel industry in the province, and discourage export of iron ore.

The province has no constitutional power to prevent exports. It attempted to get around this at the last legislature session by imposing a special tax on ore in the ground, applied only to iron.

The new regulations do not affect properties which were staked before 1951, when the reserve was placed.

CENTENARY TOPS—FISHER

Tourist Chief Lauds B.C. Plans

When Canada marks its 100th birthday in 1967, B.C. will be able to provide solid tips, John Fisher, executive director, Canadian Tourist Association, said here Wednesday.

"I would say from my experience in North America that British Columbia's centennial celebrations have the best-laid plans I have ever seen for any continuous public performance," he said.

People of the province must get behind the publicity releases and personally invite friends to attend the celebrations.

He suggested "a rash" of letter-writing to relatives. The tourist organization is organizing speakers to talk about the centenary to Eastern Canadian groups.

Volcano Spews Rock and Lava

CATANIA, Sicily (Reuters)—Explosions of exceptional violence shook Mount Etna early today as Europe's largest active volcano flung fragments of rock and molten lava nearly 5,000 feet into the air.

Experts of the Etna Volcanological Institute said the explosions were probably caused by large pockets of gas trapped under the rising lava.

APPOINTED as general manager of Washington State Ferry System is I. D. Birse of Seattle. He succeeds Floyd J. McDowell. (AP Wirephoto).

Boys Club Formed To Assist Needy

A philanthropic organization for boys aged 11 to 16 known as the Centennial Boys Club was formed in Victoria Wednesday afternoon.

"We aim to help those in need," said Al Smith, president and founder. "For instance, if a family is burned out by fire we will help them buy furniture, dishes and clothes."

"In short, we shall teach boys to help others."

The club will meet every Monday from 7 to 9:30 p.m. and will hold an outdoor event one Sunday in every month.

Boys wishing to join are invited to contact Al Smith at 579 Whiteside, telephone 9-2120. Donations will also be welcome. Classes in repairing and painting will be conducted by Larry Lamoureux while Roy Foster, and Walter Caldwell of the city police, will give movie lectures on road safety and driving.

"We hope to arrange one or two fishing derbies next summer," Al Smith said.

Secretary of the club is Gordon Ball. Bill Wendland is treasurer.

COFFEE BREWS TROUBLE FOR MANHATTAN THIEVES

NEW YORK (AP)—In Brooklyn, it seems, thieves do things in a big way—too big, in this instance.

A band of them stole a trailer-truck, backed it into a garage and unloaded its cargo of $20,000 worth of coffee. Then they headed the truck out of the garage.

However, with its load gone, the truck body rose just enough so that the garage door was too low for it. As a result the vehicle tore down the wall. The noise sent the thieves scampering, leaving the loot.

Father of 2 Jailed Year for Burglary

Robert Hatfield White, 27, of no fixed address, was sentenced to one year's hard labor in the Victoria County Court, Wednesday, on a charge of breaking and entering Chadwick's Food Market, 3770 Shelbourne, and stealing cash and cheques to the value of about $650.

Judge J. B. Clearihue pronounced sentence at 12.30 p.m., after a two-hour hearing. He said he was taking into consideration the fact that White had been in custody since December and was a married man with two children.

White, who appeared in court between two Mounted Police officers, was arrested in Victoria, October 11, by Detective Robin Stewart, following a police chase from Victoria to Vancouver and back.

FINGERPRINT CLUE

He was arrested on the evidence of fingerprints taken from a cash box, a window and a window screen at Chadwick's store after it had been broken into April 21.

He was charged in Saanich police court, December 13, and after pleading not guilty elected to go for trial.

A further plea of not guilty was entered in county court today.

Staff Sgt. H. B. S. Jones, RCMP fingerprint expert, insisted under cross-examination that there was "no possibility of a mistake" in identifying White's fingerprints with those found at the grocery store.

"Would you say fingerprint identification is a science beyond error?" asked White's counsel, James J. Proudfoot.

"Providing you have the right equipment and the circumstances are favorable, I would say yes," answered Staff Sgt. Jones.

SCREEN MOVED

Alan Bigelow, for the Crown, said a window over the kitchen sink at Chadwick's store was open three or four inches and the screen covering the window had been moved.

"I believe the fingerprint evidence is conclusive," he said. A canvas bag containing about $152 in cheques and about $438 in cash had been moved and the contents taken.

Detective Stewart said he went to Vancouver on June 24, believing White had gone there, and conducted an investigation. Four days later he issued a warrant for White's arrest and the following October he arrested him at the Victoria city police station. When cautioned, White said: "I have nothing to say."

Jaycees Plan B.C. Face-Lift

A two-week province-wide facelift is planned by more than 40 Junior Chambers of Commerce in communities across B.C. as part of a 100th birthday party "clean-up."

In co-operation with the provincial centennial committee the communities are scheduled to commence a clean-up, spruce-up, light-up, plant-up campaign April 15 centennial committee general chairman L. J. Wallace told Victoria Jaycees Wednesday night.

"If anybody has a birthday party," Mr. Wallace said "they get dressed up—well, this is the province's birthday party and we want the communities to get dressed up."

As part of the campaign it was suggested that civic groups and business firms floodlight public buildings and house-holders display their homes and gardens through illumination.

Other suggestions at the meeting included a project a day drive comprising a safety-and-fire prevention day, repair-and-modernization day, a paint-up day and other similar days during the two week period which would terminate in an inspection day.

Other guests at the meeting were Art Hopping, provincial clean-up chairman, whose totem poster design was chosen as best in the province, and Elton Harwood, past-president of the B.C. and Yukon Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Commodore V. S. Godfrey, new Greater Victoria target area co-ordinator, issued the appeal following the opening of the course Wednesday night when five volunteers turned out.

"We need at least a dozen for the course, but we would be pleased to see more come out," he said.

Those interested should contact Mrs. B. R. Grant, the instructor, at 2-2279. The group meets every Wednesday at 7.30 p.m. in the Commodore Street CD headquarters.

CD REQUESTS MORE WOMEN VOLUNTEERS

A call for more women volunteers to take an ambulance driving-first aid course was issued today from Civil Defence headquarters.

Commodore V. S. Godfrey, new Greater Victoria target area co-ordinator, issued the appeal following the opening of the course Wednesday night when five volunteers turned out.

"We need at least a dozen for the course, but we would be pleased to see more come out," he said.

Those interested should contact Mrs. B. R. Grant, the instructor, at 2-2279. The group meets every Wednesday at 7.30 p.m. in the Commodore Street CD headquarters.

FIRST Chinese member of parliament, Douglas Jung of Vancouver will seek the presidency of the Young Progressive Conservative Association at its national convention in Ottawa, January 31. His opponent will be George Hogan of Toronto.

Threat to Murder Children Was Prank by 9-Year-Old Boy

(From CP Dispatches)

VANCOUVER—A nine-year-old boy has admitted writing an extortion letter threatening to murder a Vancouver man's children, police said Wednesday.

The boy was taken to the police station by his father. He told youth detail detectives who questioned him: "It was only a joke."

The letter was received by Russell Kerr. It ordered him to place $40 in a soup can behind "Frank's store," near the Kerr residence in the central part of the city.

NEW NAME

PRINCE RUPERT—Teen-agers here say they sound better by almost any other name.

A new club formed by young people to provide youth activities decided at its opening meeting to keep clear of the word "teenage" because "it has become associated with juvenile delinquency."

The group chose the name "Prince Rupert 13-19 Club."

2 TERMS FOR GIRL

TRAIL—Nineteen-year-old Doris Harper of nearby Fruitvale was sentenced Wednesday to 14 months in Oakalla prison for forgery on two separate charges. She received a one-year term from Magistrate A. J. Smith in Fruitvale and a two-month sentence from Magistrate Parker Williams in Trail.

RADIATION THREAT

VANCOUVER—Miniature X-rays for children under 15 have been banned here because of radiation danger.

Dr. Stewart Murray, senior medical officer for the city and Dr. J. L. Gayton, his assistant, Wednesday told the Metropolitan Health Committee the decision follows policy laid down at provincial government level.

GROCER ROBBED

NEW WESTMINSTER—Two armed thugs struck Lum Lemen, an elderly Chinese grocer, on the head with a revolver Wednesday night and fled with $71 from the store's till. The grocer was treated in hospital for a gash on the head.

$5,000 BAIL

VANCOUVER—Bail was set at $5,000 Wednesday for a hotel manager charged with theft of $8,500 from his employers.

Walter Stritzel, 23, of North Vancouver, appeared in police court before Magistrate Oscar Orr and was remanded one week. He is charged with theft of the money from the Astoria Hotel in downtown Vancouver.

Keyboard, String Music To Open Gallery Series

The Greater Victoria Art Gallery's 1958 progress series begins Sunday at 4.15 p.m. when several young city musicians will present a program of early keyboard and string music. This will be the first of a winter series of Sunday musicals.

The series will be open free to the public.

On Thursday, Jan. 30 at 8.30 p.m. the British Columbia premiere of two new color films will be given at the gallery. "The Legend of the Raven" uses Eskimo sculpture to depict one of the Arctic legends. "Mural" shows the planning and development of a large fresco by the Toronto artist York Wilson. The evening will end with a showing of the well-known, nature film "The Seasons." The evening is being sponsored by the Imperial Oil Company of Canada, under whose auspices the films were made.

Early in February, at a date to be announced, the Vancouver painter, Jack Shadbolt, will give an illustrated talk, "Mediterranean Motifs," describing the background to the creation of his Riviera canvases which are currently being shown for the first time at the gallery.

BASSO, TENOR TAKE A STAB AT REAL DUEL

ROME (AP)—A Bulgarian basso and an Italian tenor are suing each other for damages over a rehearsal sword fight for the Rome Opera which turned into a real duel.

Both of the actors in the tempestuous stage scene claim they suffered wounds in the slashing and stabbing with the blunted swords. The husky basso, Boris Christoff, says he was stabbed in the index finger and humiliated with insults. The handsome, curly-haired tenor, Franco Corelli, says his right hand was slashed and that he, too, suffered from insults.

What's New, Fellas?

Goalie Emile Francis of the Cougars, a native of Saskatchewan, tries to coax some news from the Prairies out of Victoria's newest acquisitions, wingers Denny Olson (centre) and

Floyd on Dead-End Lane While Cus Battles IBC

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP)—The heavyweights, from champion Floyd Patterson on down, walked a dead-end street today

despite a flurry of contractual action. Two bouts among those in the top 10 promised some activity. But the ultimate goal—heavyweight title defense—still was stymied by a feud between the IBC and the Patterson camp.

And there's no peace in sight. Eddie Machen, the top-ranked challenger, and Zora Folley meet in San Francisco on March 17 and Argentinean Alex Miteff will tackle Cuba's Nino Valdes in Madison Square Garden on Feb. 21.

All this means is that the standings of the top 10 challengers may be juggled. Because Cus d'Amato, Patterson's manager, will have nothing to do with what he describes as IBC puppets and places Machen, in particular, at the top of his black list.

d'Amato says that he has several solid offers for a title defense Patterson could make in the United States.

KEEPING PLANS SECRET
"But it is very probable that we will go abroad this year," he adds. "Harry Levine, an English promoter who battles Jack Solomon, the IBC man, is coming here Friday. He is the kind of man with whom I want to deal—a man who is actively and aggressively opposed to the IBC."

But d'Amato isn't revealing any of his concrete plans. "Every time I do," he charges, "the IBC counter-attacks. They tell the man I'm trying to line up that if he fights Patterson he will get no more fights from their fighters. So, all of a sudden, they are no longer available."

ONLY ONE CHANCE
d'Amato reiterated that any body who "turned down a chance to fight Patterson doesn't get another crack."

"If they tried to blacklist me," he barked, "they'll find they were backing the wrong horse."

d'Amato also said that he isn't concerned with the ratings of the National Boxing Association.

"Other champions fight nobodies and get away with it," he argued. "Well, we have made as many title defenses as Rocky Marciano or any of them—and just as much money, too. Not even the NBA can say that I have to fight any one guy."

So there is a definite impasse.

CAN KEEP BUSY
It stands to reason that the top 10 won't break away from their "union." They can keep busy by fighting each other while one crack at an independent Patterson could ruin their title hopes for all time.

Thus the fight fan is doomed to a series of "nothing" heavy-weight bouts—and Patterson apparently is going to have to take his business abroad to prevent a repetition of the Rasmussen fiasco.

Obviously, d'Amato and the IBC aren't going to bury the hatchet unless it's in each other's back.

NEW COUGARS 'EAGER BEAVERS'

Pat Admires That Kind of Enthusiasm

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Patrick Egan has a great admiration for enthusiasm. For that reason, the Victoria Cougar playing coach feels highly thankful that Denny Olson and Tom McCarthy will be shooting with him instead of against him.

The two newest members of the city's Western Hockey League entry make their Memorial Arena debut Saturday night against their former teammates. The two wingers were obtained from Edmonton Flyers last week in the deal that saw Colin Kilburn, Cougars' former playing manager, shipped to the Prairie Division team.

With Kilburn returning—wearing rival colors for the first time in six years—and with the two newcomers starting off against their former mates, Saturday's game seems certain to attract the season's top turnout.

The Cougar ticket office reported Wednesday that tickets for Saturday's game were "going like hot cakes."

Egan watched McCarthy and Olson, both of whom had flings with Detroit Red Wings in the National Hockey League earlier this season, turned in impressive performances in Wednesday's practice session.

"You know," Egan said, nodding towards his new players, "those two guys really want to play hockey. That's a good sign."

"Did you know," he continued, "that they drove non-stop from Edmonton in order to play in Seattle last Sunday. They drove all night and only managed to get an hour's rest before the game. They didn't even take time to eat."

"I told them they didn't have to play, but they wanted to. As you know, they picked up three points between them."

Olson, a solid six-foot, three-inch native of Kenora, Ont., has 18 goals and 14 assists in 35 games this year.

Last season he scored 25 in winning the league's rookie award while at New Westminster.

McCarthy, who appeared in 18 games with Detroit before joining the Flyers, has scored eight goals and 19 assists in 23 WHL contests.

Egan is working McCarthy with Doug Macauley and centre Gord Wilson, while Olson is on a line with Ed Dorohoy and Gord Haworth. Both units were flying Wednesday.

ICE CHIPS: Haworth and defenceman Nelson Bulloch also looked sharp in Wednesday's workout. . . Bulloch skated as if he meant business. . . Don Hamilton, rookie netminder who played for the Cats at the start of the season, is working out with the club again. . . he'll serve as insurance behind Emile (the Cat) Francis. . . with two goalies on hand, the Cougars are able to turn in more strenuous practices. . . Cougars have signed Barry Zajac, a young netminder from Nelson, to a tryout form. . . he'll report to training camp next fall. . . Egan sent the junior to Medicine Hat, where he'll come in for regular duty. . . Victoria's postponed game with Vancouver will be played at Vancouver Feb. 11. . . that was the one that was postponed when the team was levelled by the flu bug.

Plante Didn't Act Like 'Lucky' Guy

By The Canadian Press

Jacques Plante and Ed Chadwick are a couple of goalies with popularity problems.

Plante is boosted by coach Hector (Toe) Blake of the Montreal Canadiens. But everywhere else around the National Hockey League he's simply a lot-of-luck guy playing behind the strong Montreal defence.

Chadwick has been eyed enviously by Boston Bruins and praised by other teams. The best he can get from Stafford Smythe, chairman of Toronto Maple Leafs hockey committee, is that he'd better produce like an allstar or join one of the other clubs.

However their teammates agree both are standouts in a tough profession.

That was the case Wednesday night as Montreal shaded Toronto 2-0, with Plante turning in his seventh shutout of the season.

The 29-year-old Shawinigan Falls, Que., native stopped only 20 shots but they included sizzlers from Barry Cullen and a blast by Ron Stewart that forced him to retire for 10 minutes with a groin injury.

Chadwick made 26 saves, several of them spectacular, and the teams appeared to be on the way to a repeat of a scoreless game they played Dec. 4.

Then defenceman Bobby Baun got faked out of position by league-leading scorer Dickie Moore with less than six minutes left and Moore hit the corner with a backhand shot. It was his ninth goal this season against the Leafs and 25th of the year.

Montreal's Jean Beliveau wound up the scoring when he came in alone and casually drew Chadwick out of position.

PLAYERS FINED

Earlier the 24-year-old native of Fergus made spectacular stops on Marcel Bonin, Andre Pronovost and Dollard St. Laurent.

Referee Frank Udvari cracked down on arguing and Toronto's George Armstrong received a 10-minute misconduct for arguing and game misconduct for continuing the debate. He will pay $75 in fines.

Montreal's Bert Olmstead and Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion each talked themselves into misconducts and $25 fines.

Runner-Up Clubs Battle to Tie; Canucks Beaten

By The Canadian Press

If not aware of it beforehand, you might have surmised by the way Edmonton Flyers and New Westminster Royals played against each other Wednesday night that they stand about even in the Western Hockey League.

Bud Poile's Flyers and Hal Laycoe's Royals, occupants of second place in the Prairie and Coast divisions, respectively, seemed as evenly matched as two teams can be as they battled to a 2-2 overtime tie at New Westminster.

The game was the first of four that Flyers will play in five nights on the Coast and its outcome moved them to within six points of Winnipeg Warriors, leaders of the Prairie division.

FINNEY GETS TWO

New Westminster climbed to within seven points of the Coast-leading Vancouver Canucks, who were set back 4-2 by Prairie tail-enders Calgary Stampeders at Calgary Wednesday. Sid Finney scored two goals for the Stamps and assisted on the others.

By winning, Calgary moved within a single point of Saskatoon-St. Paul Regals, who occupy third position 13 points behind Edmonton.

The game was marked by roughness, capped by a fist-swinging encounter in the third period between Orland Kurtenbach of the Canucks and Dennis Barkley.

DOBRYN SCORES

Canucks opened the scoring in the first period when Hugh Currie connected with a long screened shot, but Dave Duke got that one back for Calgary five minutes later.

Finney gave the Stampeders a 2-1 lead in the second period but 20 seconds before the end of the stanza Bill Dobryn squared the count for Vancouver.

Finney got the winner in the third, and Chuck Blair put the game on ice.

At New Westminster, forward Arlo Goodwin tipped in a double relay from Max McNab and Arnie Schmutz at 1:14 of the third period to give the Royals a sawoff. For more than 28 minutes after that, including overtime, the teams played scoreless hockey.

COLIN STARTS IT

The game featured end-to-end rushes and spectacular netminding by the Royals' Bev Bentley and Edmonton's Dennis Rigrin.

Colin Kilburn gave Edmonton a 1-0 lead in the first period and later Len Lunde made it 2-0.

Steve Hrynnyk got one back for New Westminster in the second.

In tonight's only game Winnipeg is at Saskatoon-St. Paul.

IN HOCKEY NEWS today are Doug Anderson (left) and Doug Kilburn. Victoria Cougars have renewed attempts to come to terms with Anderson, inactive this season after five years with club and have asked waivers on Kilburn in order to cut down to WHL player limit of 15.

DRAWS WITH BOYD

Holly Sends Out Invitations to All

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (UP)—

Holly Mims, a veteran middleweight who was reported on his way down hill, invited all comers today to test the new potency of his right hand.

The 29-year-old Washington, D.C., scrapper, whistled home a short right to the jaw of Bobby Boyd Wednesday night to earn a 10-round draw with the heavily-favored seventh-ranked middleweight from Chicago in a return bout.

The punch came in the eighth round and dumped Boyd to the canvas before 2,496 fans and a national television audience.

"I sure thought I had him then," Mims, a 3-1 underdog said. "I told myself, 'Lord don't let him get up.'"

But Boyd, a busy jabber, rose at the count of four and went back into action after referee Eddie Cochman called the mandatory eight-count.

Mims and his handlers called the draw decision "robbery." But the judges and referee thought Boyd's pressing and jabbing tactics against the retreating and grappling Mims at least earned an even count despite the knockdown.

Cochman scored it an even 95-95 for both fighters. Judge Eddie Hall called it 97-97, but judge Barry Pearlman gave the nod to Boyd by a 96-94 count. The United Press also had Boyd slightly ahead, 96-94.

In their first meeting, April 18, 1956, Boyd won a close decision.

'Unfair' Says Rochon

MONTREAL (CP) — Indefinite suspension of Henri Rochon, who has played on 10 Canadian Davis Cup teams, was announced Wednesday by the Province of Quebec Lawn Tennis Association.

The 33-year-old southpaw, ranked No. 7 nationally and No. 3 provincially in 1957, said he is considering an appeal.

The suspension by the PQLTA was for "conduct deemed unethical, derogatory and detrimental to the association and to tennis in general."

The formal resolution was prefaced by a statement saying Rochon appeared before the council last Sept. 19 regarding complaints made and that Rochon "has openly admitted statements for publication to the effect that the 1956 council's attitude was 'disturbing.'"

DEEPER REASON

In an interview Rochon said he considers the suspension unfair and that the real reason goes deeper than that stated in the formal motion. He admitted he "did talk too much" but said other high-ranked players have complained or talked at times and nothing has happened.

If Rochon makes an appeal it will go before the council which suspended him.

President Harry Marpole of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association said he did not wish to comment since the PQLTA action has not yet come formally before the parent body.

RIGHT STROKES AT WRONG TIME

Sue Has Doubts About Florida Weather

(This is the third in a series of reports written exclusively for The Daily Times by Victoria tennis star Susan Butt. Considered one of Canada's top net prospects, Susan will continue on the Florida and Caribbean winter tournament circuit for at least two more months.)

By SUSAN BUTT

MIAMI, Fla. — After two weeks in "sunny" Florida, I'm beginning to have my doubts about the weather here being any better than it is back home.

In St. Petersburg, we had some snow, plenty of rain and a few gales. In spite of it all, however, the tournament had to go on ... and did.

It seems I'm having difficulty in getting past the second round. That's where I lost to Laura Lou Kunnen in the West Coast championships and it was also in the second round at the Coral Gables-University of Miami tournament that I fell to Ann Vieira, of Denmark.

However, I was rather pleased with my game against Ann. Her experience—or my lack of it—made the difference. I lost 7-5, 4-6, 8-6, but think I have improved in each of the three tournaments I have played in Florida.

It was at St. Pete that I had the privilege of talking to Mary Hardwick, the great former English champion. Mary, who is married to an American, has won at Wimbledon several times.

She now is a representative of a sporting goods company and travels around the United States conducting junior tennis clinics and visiting the tournaments.

We had quite a nice chat and she remembers playing pro exhibition matches against Alice Marble in Victoria and Vancouver.

She paid me a very nice compliment about my game. She says I have all the strokes, but do not use the right ones at the right time. "Tournament experience will teach you this," she told me.

St. Petersburg was the first city where I noticed segregation in practice. The Negroes are kept under thumb at all times and must sit in the back of the buses.

St. Pete generally has a lovely climate and it is actually a resort town. The majority of people here seem to be elderly and they come from all parts of the States as well as Canada. One of its biggest claims to fame is the yacht basin here, one of the best in the world. The yacht club is one of the largest too.

On our last night in St. Petersburg, we all went to a restaurant which advertises "all you can eat for 99c." And, oh dear, I'll end my story here.

DUNLOPS HELD TO TIE

U.S. Tougher Than Russia?

ST. PAUL, Minn. (BUP) — Team manager Wren Blair said today he was "much more impressed" by the United States hockey team than the Russians after the Americans held his Whitby Dunlops to a 2-2 tie Wednesday night.

The Dunlops, Canada's entry in the world amateur hockey championships in Oslo, Norway, next month, have played both the U.S. and Russian entries in the world tourney. They beat the Moscow Selects, 7-2, in the first game of an eight-game Canadian tour and they have won one and tied one against the Americans. Tuesday night they beat the Americans, 6-3.

The Dunlops and the Americans crammed all their scoring into the final period as a crowd of 5,044 turned out to watch the first international hockey game held in St. Paul since 1932.

Blair, whose team leaves New York Jan. 29 for Europe, thought the American team stands a good chance in the world tournament which starts Feb. 28. The Dunlops, who currently boast a 19-point lead in Ontario Senior "A" Hockey League, sail aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth from New York. They are scheduled to arrive at Southampton Feb. 4.

Almost immediately the Dunlops will embark on a 15-game exhibition tour through England and Europe in order to sharpen up on international hockey rules which will be used at Oslo during the Feb. 28-March 9 tournament.

Whitby plays its first game in London, the day after arriving in England. Following a game at Brighton Feb. 6, the team will leave for Frankfurt, Germany. Seven exhibition games are also scheduled following the world championships before the team leaves England March 21 aboard the Empress of Britain.

The rough and tough Penticton V's from the Okanagan valley of British Columbia won the tournament three years ago when it was played at Krefeld, Germany. But the following year the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen were beaten by both Russia and the United States and finished third. Last year Canada declined to enter a team because of international feelings against Russia.

Rated Strongest to Represent Canada

The latest acquisition by the Dunlops added a left winger and a veteran defenceman to the packed lineup. Team manager Wren Blair said the addition of winger George (Goose) Gosselin and rearguard Jean Paul Lamirande, 34, make the Dunlops the strongest team ever to represent Canada in the world tournament.

Gosselin has averaged 25 goals a season for five years with the North Bay Trappers. Lamirande, who has seen action with the New York Rangers and the Montreal Canadiens during his much-travelled hockey career, is considered a good passer, a smart defensive player and was described by his coach of the Quebec Aces,

Dodger Dates Cause Change

CINCINNATI (AP) — The National League has thrown out its current schedule of 1958 baseball games because of 16 changes by the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Dave Grote, head of the league's service bureau, announced plans for revisions Wednesday and said the present schedule is obsolete.

He said a revised schedule will be submitted to National League members this week-end in New York. It may be two weeks before the new schedule is ready, he said.

Grote said the changes came after Los Angeles picked the Coliseum for its home games, and said the intense summer heat in southern California was a factor in changing playing dates and the number of night and Sunday games.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions in select to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

What Exactly Is a Volcano?

In 1943, the geologists had a chance to see the birth of a volcano. It happened near the mountain village of Parícutin, 200 miles west of Mexico City. The region is dotted with the cones of volcanoes. For this is an area where the earth's rocky crust is unsettled. Far below ground there are stresses and strains which cause earthquakes, volcanoes and the building of new mountains.

Certainly the ground seemed very unsettled in February, 1943. For a week there were earthquakes every day. One day the earth rumbled and trembled 300 times. But the next day, Feb. 20, farmer Dionisio Pulido was out tending his cornfield. Of all things, he saw a plume of smoke rising from a hole in the ground. This was too much. The story goes that farmer Pulido took matters into his own hands and carried stones to plug up the smoky hole.

Molten Lava Buried Homes

Then came the lava. Rivers of red hot molten rock poured forth over the countryside. Farmlands, houses and villages were buried. After three months the volcano's cone stood 1,100 feet high. A year after farmer Pulido tried to bury the young volcano with a rock, the cone was 1,400 feet high. The volcano was named Parícutin for the first village it destroyed. It raged and grew for several years. Then it became calm.

Parícutin may be dormant, asleep and waiting to erupt again. It may be extinct—its fury ended forever. If so, in time the wind and weather will wear away the high hill it built over the farms and villages.

Each volcano has its own history. Some are active through many centuries. Some live only a few years. Sometimes a volcano seems to be extinct, only to burst forth with new fury. During their lives, volcanoes build some of the most beautiful of mountains. Shasta, Rainier, Hood and Whitney are mountains made by volcanoes. All volcanoes have roots that go miles into the earth. Down there the temperature may be 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit. Buried rocks may be heated to melting point. Where there are stresses and upheavals in the earth's crust, pools of magma may collect. Far below every active volcano, a pool of magma waits to erupt through a vent, or tunnel, to the surface.

Andy sends a Hammond's Nature Atlas of America to Elaine Charest, age 13, of Bridgeport, Conn., for her question:

How much does the biggest Galapagos turtle weigh?

The giant turtle of the Galapagos Islands is really a tortoise. For he is a land dweller and avoids the water. He is a vegetarian, feeding on grass, leaves and the spiny cactus. He does not seem to mind when the spines stick in his mouth. The big fellow is a giant of the reptile world. The largest of them dwell in the wild regions of the green islands off the coast of Ecuador and are not often seen by men. Some of these old giants are said to weigh 500 pounds—a quarter ton. They may be nearly 100 years old.

Smaller giant turtles are found near the settlements. You might find one as tall as a small Shetland pony. Instead of a saddle, his back is covered with a domed shell of armor plating. He is a gentle, slow moving fellow. If you are not in a hurry you might take a ride on his back.

MOHAMMEDANS SEEKING FRIENDS OF OWN FAITH

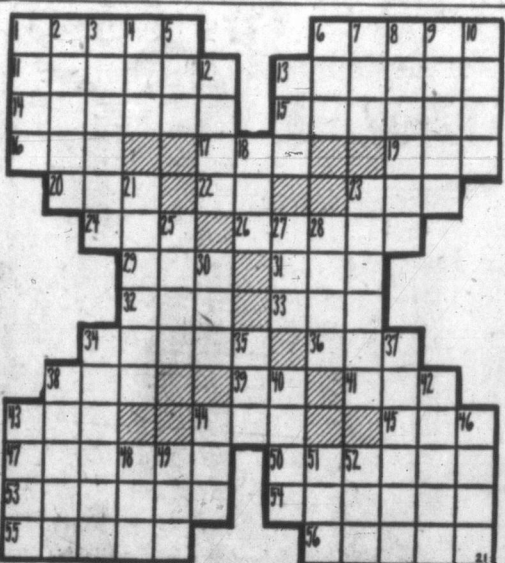

Are there any people of Mohammedan faith in Victoria?

Two lonely, jobless immigrants from Yugoslavia are anxious to meet people of their own faith in the city.

The immigrants are brothers and wards of the Department of Immigration here. Sulejam Mustajebovic, 27, is a cabinet maker, while Munib, 28, has had experience as an electrician.

Immigration officials described the two men as "nice fellows," who are studying hard to learn English.

"But we haven't been able to find any people of Mohammedan faith in the city," they said. "We would like to make them as happy as possible."

LONDON (CP)—British coal miners, who have demonstrated for more than 10 years that even the government can't boss them around, are preparing to discipline themselves.

In a revolutionary attempt to rid their industry of absenteeism, Lancashire miners have agreed to establish colliery courts to sit in judgment on workers who stay away from the mines without good reason.

The scheme reflects the growing concern of the National Union of Mineworkers over "wilful" absenteeism. Last year absenteeism increased to 13.81 per cent from the 1956 rate of 12.92 despite union attempts to keep its members working. An estimated 2,000,000 tons of coal were lost.

The new scheme is confined to the 67 Lancashire pits. If successful, it is almost certain to spread throughout the nationalized industry that embraces about 850 pits and 700,000 miners.

MEND WAYS OR ELSE

Edwin Hall, secretary of the Lancashire section of the NUM, said in announcing the plan that joint-management-union-committees will be formed at each pit to deal with absenteeism. Miners with bad attendance records will be interviewed by the committee and given a month to mend their ways. If they fail to do so they will be demoted or fired.

Since the coal industry was nationalized more than 10 years ago absenteeism has remained a major problem.

About two years ago the Coal Board introduced a "bonus" scheme, under which miners were paid for six shifts provided they worked five full shifts. Miners missing a shift for reasons other than illness lost the bonus.

The miners, sensitive to any form of outside coercion, fought to have the bonus incorporated into regular shift wage rates. Then Coal Board agreed to the change last May after the union had undertaken to fight absenteeism.

$229 Per Capita Given Church By Adventists

Average per capita giving in the Victoria Seventh-Day Adventist Church last year was $229, church clerk Mrs. S. G. White told a recent annual meeting.

Twelve members were baptized in the church in 1957, bringing total baptized membership to 220.

The congregation gave $50,587, of which $13,561 will be used for mission work.

Mrs. John W. Boyd, secretary of the Dorcas Benevolent Service, reported the Community Welfare Centre at the church had helped 634 needy persons during the year, and given away 3,476 articles of clothing. Food hampers were delivered at Christmas.

More than 55,000 pieces of gospel literature were distributed by 126 members of the Home Mission, the secretary, Christopher Buckle, said.

Snowman Sighting Debunked

MOSCOW (UP)—A prominent Soviet scientist Wednesday took sharp issue with a colleague who claimed he saw two "abominable snowmen" with his own eyes in Soviet Asia.

"I do not think there are any real facts to support the theory of the snowman," scientist A. Letavet said in an article in the English-language Moscow News.

Alexander Pronin of Leningrad University had reported he twice saw the snowmen during an expedition to the Pamir Mountains of central Asia last August. The university plans to send an expedition to the Pamirs this year to attempt to trap one of the legendary snowmen.

Fire Alarms Come Free

Fire alarms are free in Oak Bay. Anywhere else in Victoria, too.

Oak Bay fire department is anxious to correct a wrong impression on the part of many people who think they will be charged a fee for phoning in a fire alarm, even though the fire may be their fault.

Fire chief's office has had a number of inquiries about fees for alarms and is at a loss to explain how the misconception got started.

It is pointed out that fire departments are a public service paid for out of tax revenues, not through services rendered.

Canadian Unions Enjoy Own Rights

OTTAWA (CP)—International unions with headquarters in the United States are the dominant force in Canadian organized labor, the Gordon economic commission was told in a report made public today.

But the report said Canadian branches of those unions have wide freedom to make their own decisions. There was no indication that the international unions try to force Canadian employers to pay the same wages obtained south of the border.

In fact, Canadian wages ran about 25 or 30 per cent below those in the U.S. and that gap had been continuing for some time although membership in international unions had increased greatly.

The labor study was included in a report on Canada-U.S. economic relations by S. S. Reisman of the government's finance department and Professor Irving Brecher of McGill University.

DETERMINE INFLUENCE
"The prime objective," said the authors, "is to shed some light on one basic question; namely, whether international unions in Canada under American influence seek and impose wage and employment conditions which reflect the more productive American industrial structure and which therefore prejudice the efficiency and competitiveness of Canadian industry."

They concluded that such is not the case. Of some 2,268,000 union members in Canada in 1955, 894,000 belonged to groups with international affiliation; a fourfold increase from 1939.

But in 1955 average weekly earnings in Canadian factories totalled $59.25 compared with $76.52 in the U.S.
"There now exists a very substantial gap between Canadian and American wages," the report said. "Despite some narrowing over the years, this differential has persisted in large measure throughout Canadian economic history."

GUEST SPEAKER at the annual general meeting of Victoria Automobile Club in the Duke of Kent room, Empress Hotel Tuesday at 4 p.m. will be Evan Jones, deputy highways minister.

One-Night Circus At Victoria High Set for Feb. 7

Staff and students of Victoria High School will stage a one-night circus, with everything but wild beasts, at the school Friday, Feb. 7.

A variety show will dominate the auditorium. The gymnasium will be transformed into a colorful midway with games, cafeteria and bowling facilities, and booths for sale of clothing, records, home cooking, jewelry, carpentry and sheet metal items, automotive parts and flowers.

The first VHS circus since 1955 will start at 7 p.m. Large part of proceeds will be used to purchase uniforms for members of the student band. Tickets may be obtained from students.

Historical Quarterlies Published Soon

The British Columbia Historical Quarterlies for 1955 and 1956 will be published shortly, Education Minister Peterson said today.

The minister said there will be no publication for 1957, and this year the Quarterlies will become an annual.

His statement followed a heated discussion of the matter at the annual meeting of the B.C. Historical Association in Nanaimo last weekend.

Members complained they had paid more than $1,500 into the government Archives, which publishes the Quarterlies, for issues that did not appear.

BCE 'Picking Pockets' Allegation Ridiculed

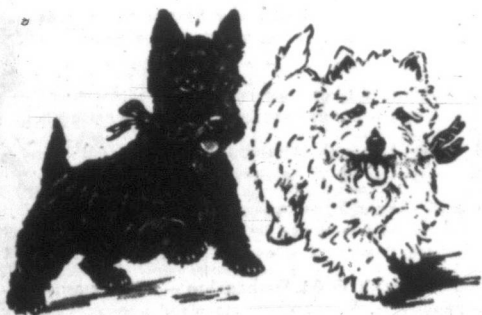

VANCOUVER (CP)—A CCF official's allegation that B.C. Electric is "picking the pockets" of Lower Mainland natural gas consumers was rejected Tuesday by H. L. Purdy, BCE executive vice-president, as "just plain silly." Accounts of the company were standard, examined "without an element of truth."

CCF provincial secretary Harold Thayer told a public meeting in Burnaby Monday that gas users are paying three times as much as they should be, giving the company big profits.

Mr. Purdy said the statement that B.C. Electric is salting away big earnings is "just plain silly." Accounts of the company were standard, examined "without an element of truth."

Earnings on investment in gas property in 1957 "were a very meagre 2.5 per cent."

HUIIBER'S

U.S. to Send Yeast Container Into Space Aboard Baby Moon

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States plans to fire a simple form of life into space aboard one of its first test earth satellites, it was disclosed yesterday.

A navy spokesman said a small container of yeast would be carried hundreds of miles above the earth by "one or more" of the baby satellites scheduled to be launched between now and March.

The navy plans to launch up to four six-inch satellites during the next three months. Then it plans to launch its first fully-instrumented 20-inch satellite.

The spokesman said the yeast would be in a special container equipped with instruments which presumably would transmit data back to earth.

SYNAGOGUE CEREMONY

Centenary to Honor Jewish Pioneers

A parade and two ceremonies are tentatively planned for a centennial year commemoration of the arrival of Jewish pioneers in Victoria.

Plans for the ceremonies were revealed Wednesday night in Temple Emmanuel, Pandora and Blanshard, the oldest synagogue in Western Canada.

Members of the Vancouver Jewish community and other groups will arrive here June 1. A dockside welcome by public dignitaries and a band will be followed by a parade to the synagogue.

A narrative description of the arrival of the first Jews in the city and re-enactment of the synagogue's cornerstone-laying in 1862, in which French, Scots, German and other groups participated, will be featured in an afternoon ceremony.

SITE MARKERS ASKED

A smaller ceremony will be held later at the Jewish cemetery. It is hoped that provincial historic site markers will be obtained for both the synagogue and the cemetery.

B.C. Centennial Committee's

Homes Searched For Explosives

CHICAGO (AP)—Fifty firemen Wednesday night began a house-to-house search for about 100 persons who bought an explosive gasoline mixture instead of fuel oil for their stoves.

Officials of the Martin Oil Company said the petroleum mixture of gas and fuel oil was mistakenly sold Tuesday at one of its stations for use in cooking stoves.

FIRST ARRIVAL

Captain Bartholomew Gosnold, first white man in New England, landed near New Bedford, Mass., in 1602.

LECTURE TOUR of Eastern Canada will be undertaken in March by Dr. Clifford G. Carl, director of the provincial museum. Tour, which extends from March 10 to 28, will be under the auspices of the National Audubon Society.

PUC Will Probe Natural Gas Rate

The Public Utilities Commission will conduct a review of natural gas rates charged by the B.C. Electric Co. "some time this summer," Dr. Henry Angus, chairman, said today.

"This was promised by the commission when the natural gas rates were first set," he added. "It does not indicate any change of policy."

"The rates were fixed subject to revision as soon as figures were available for the first year, and we advised all the municipalities to this effect."

"When your fix rates on estimates you may have to revise them—even upward if necessary. You cannot fix rates without knowing the actual cost of operations."

Dr. Angus said figures for the first year of operation might be available in August, in which case the PUC would review rates soon after.

Harold Thayer, provincial CCF secretary, said earlier this week that the B.C. Electric was "picking the pockets" of natural gas users on the lower mainland.

Harry J. Purdy, the company's executive vice-president, replied that Mr. Thayer's statement contained "not a word of truth."

Cmdr. (E) H. L. Elliott, OBE, will present a paper on "Public Safety In and About Merchant Ships" at a meeting of Victoria section, Institute of Marine Engineers, in the Dockyard Officer's Club, HMC Dockyard, next Tuesday at 8 p.m.

VENEZUELAN ASK HUMAN RIGHTS

Manifesto Attracts Attention

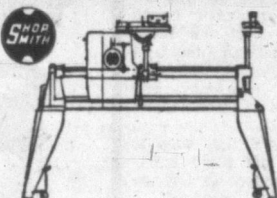

A manifesto on human rights of which Venezuela is a signatory, signed by 350 prominent Venezuelans is the weapon being used against dictatorial rule in the South American republic. The manifesto, sent to The Times by the Inter-American Press Association, calls for re-establishment of individual rights "in accordance with the charter of the United Nations, Marcos Perez Jimenez this month and the arrest of several cabinet ministers). The manifesto demands guarantees of freedom of expression, government by popular will, freeing of political prisoners and exiles and an end to insults directed at religious authorities by the regime. The manifesto has been signed by members of the Venezuelan Association of Newspapers among others.

A diesel-powered ferry being built in Vancouver at a cost of $250,000 to serve the Gulf Islands likely will be ready for service in April, according to Capt. O. H. New, of Vancouver and Galiano Island.

Most Teenagers Good Citizens Kiwanians Told

NANAIMO — The majority of teenagers are good students and good citizens, according to Jack Clark, manager of the Unemployment Insurance Commission here.

Speaking to Nanaimo Kiwanis Club as chairman of the club vocational guidance committee, he said juvenile delinquencies are due solely to a small minority in the teenage group, and that their activities get much more publicity than those of the industrious, progressive youngsters.

His speech served to inaugurate a "student of the month" award, to be made monthly to a deserving city or district boy or girl.

Choice for the first award was Grant Betz, 18, a student at Nanaimo Senior High School, president of the Nomads Car Club, and contributor to the high school annual.

In accepting his gift, an engraved pen, he said students at the high school appreciated the interest taken in their affairs by the Kiwanis Club.

"Sometimes we feel we are being ignored by older people," he said. "Things like the club's recognition make us better equipped to take our place in later life."

LANDMARK TO GO

Old Hotel Blocking Nanaimo's Approach

NANAIMO — An old hotel, still boasting a sign that offers a foaming schooner of beer for five cents, is due to be razed this summer in order to improve the southern approach to the city's business section.

Some years ago the city bought the vacant Crescent Hotel, a four-story structure in the middle of a tiny island of buildings that blocks access to the main thorough routes of the downtown area.

The city is negotiating with owners of a cleaning firm and a bakery, only other business establishments on the "island," with a view to buying or exchanging property.

As soon as the whole tract is city-owned, then all the buildings will be levelled and the adjacent Pioneer Square area will be broadened.

Victoria Crescent, Commercial Street and Terminal Avenue will be improved by the development.

15-Year-Old Brannan Lake Youth Jailed

NANAIMO (CP)—A 15-year-old Vancouver boy was sentenced Wednesday to 10 months in prison when he pleaded guilty in police court to a charge of setting fire to the provincial Boys' Industrial School at Brannan Lake, north of here.

Joseph Michael Burkhart was transferred from juvenile to open court on the charge of arson, originally laid last Aug. 15.

The frail-looking youth had escaped to Vancouver where he was picked up on more charges. He told the court he now is serving nine months in the Young Offenders' Unit at Oakalla. The boy was brought back to Nanaimo on the prison charge for breach of his probation.

Free Fuel Aim to Stop Log Thefts

PORT ALBERT (CP)—MacMillan & Bloedel plans to provide Sproat Lake residents with free firewood.

Representatives of the big lumber firm told a ratepayers' meeting it intends to take no action against recent log piracy.

Instead, residents of the lake area are offered four small booms of reject logs they can use for firewood. The rejects will be available between Jan. 24 and Feb. 24.

The representatives said the log piracy had cost the firm $1,000 monthly.

Teachers Spurn Offer

VANCOUVER (CP)—An offer by the school board of a 5.8-per-cent wage increase was unanimously rejected Tuesday by the 800 members of the Vancouver Elementary School Teachers' Association. The association asked for a 20.9-per-cent increase.

Seal Migration, Food Under Study

NANAIMO—A study of fur seal migration and eating habits will be undertaken by Pacific Biological Station following agreement by the United States, Russia, Japan and Canada.

Gordon Pike, his assistant and a boat crew will leave shortly on a three-month expedition up the B.C. coast. Specimens will be brought back to the station for observation and examination.

The four countries have agreed to the project in the interests of conservation.

BB Bureau Studied For Nanaimo Area

NANAIMO—Local branch of the Canadian Association of Consumers will ask the Chamber of Commerce here to investigate the possibility of setting up a better business bureau in its offices on Terminal Avenue.

DEEP-SEA SHIPS IN PORT

Victoria—Fiducia, Gladfield, Sussex Trader.

Cowichan Bay—Baron Inverclyde.

Crofton—North Britain.

Tahsis—Wairuna.

Alberni—Aggersborg, Lakemba, Blue Master, Daizul Maru.

J. Russell Dudley, executive manager of the chamber, told the branch at a meeting this week that there are only seven such bureaus in Canada, and that a population of 30,000 would be required to warrant such a bureau.

FROM DUNCAN NORTH

If established it could serve the area from Duncan north, he said. Ordinarily it would cost $12,000 in its first year, he said, but with office space available that figure could be reduced.

The consumers' branch will ask the Local Council of Women for support, and the LCW in turn will ask both the city council and Chamber of Commerce to back the project.

Realtors Name Representative To Town Planners

NANAIMO — John Piccas has been chosen by real estate dealers here as their representative on the Nanaimo Town Planning Commission.

He will replace Rae Leslie. William Luhtala, president of Nanaimo County Real Estate Board, this week named Dr. Mladen G. Zorkin and Allan Armstrong to arrange for a strong Nanaimo delegation to attend the B.C. Association of Real Estate Boards convention in Victoria March 17-18.

Mr. Luhtala told the board the local multiple listing service now has $509,800 listed of a total of $1,275,000 listed under the B.C. multiple listing service.

Kinsmen Polio Fund Aids Island Children

Vancouver Island children share in the benefits of the B.C. Child Care and Polio Fund, now attempting to raise $275,000.

It is sponsored by the Kinsmen Clubs of B.C. to finance rehabilitation of polio patients, teaching projects, and aid handicapped youngsters in every possible way.

Ken John, campaign chairman for the Vic-Van-Isle Kinsmen Club in Victoria, said that although the rehabilitation centre is in Vancouver, which has almost half the population of the province, less than one-fifth of the children at the centre are from the metropolitan area.

Following is a list of the towns from which children come for aid.

Abbotsford, 3; Burns Lake, 1; Campbell River, 2; Chilliwack, 5; Cloverdale, 1; Cranbrook, 1; Courtenay, 2; Dawson Creek, 4; Duncan, 2; Hope, 2; Kamloops, 2; Kelowna, 1; Kitimat, 3; Ladysmith, 1; Lake Cowichan, 1; Langley, 1; Mission, 1; Nanaimo, 15; Nelson, 1; Oliver, 2; Parksville, 1; Princeton, 2; Prince Rupert, 2; Quesnel, 1; Salmon Arm, 10; Terrace, 4; Trail, 5; Vancouver area, 17; Victoria, 2; Whalley, 2.

The Kinsmen-sponsored fund also supports special speech therapy classes and a mobile hearing clinic for children.

Anyone knowing of a handicapped child or polio patient needing treatment may contact the local Kinsmen Club or fund headquarters in Vancouver for assistance, Mr. John said.

Port Angeles Ferries To Resume as in 1957

Washington State, CPR to Share Runs

Ferry service between Victoria and Port Angeles will be carried on this summer by two companies on about the same basis as last year, it was learned unofficially today.

A Canadian Pacific Railways spokesman said the passenger department expected the service by Princess Joan and Princess Elizabeth to start on or about April 27, although official approval has yet to be received. Washington State Ferries, operators of the Kalakala, are currently negotiating with Puget Sound Navigation Co., owners of the Black Ball dock here, for rental for the summer season.

Start of the service about mid-June is expected soon.

A third company interested in the route, Black Ball Inc. of Seattle, will not have a ship ready for the service this summer.

R. J. Acheson, president of the company, said today plans to build a ship for the route were "progressing," but he could not hope to have it ready before January of 1959.

Mr. Acheson hopes to provide a year-round service.

Other developments in the ferry field: I. D. "Bud" Birse, at present vice-president of Black Ball lines, is leaving that position Feb. 28 to become general manager of Washington State Ferries.

He succeeds Floyd McDowell, who is retiring.

Port commissioners of Port Angeles are still actively interested in purchasing the Puget Sound Navigation terminal there, for lease to companies operating to Victoria. But their plans are based on a company which will operate year-round. So far, only Mr. Acheson's firm has expressed interest in providing such a service.

Capt. Alex M. Peabody, president of Puget Sound Navigation Co., today confirmed rumors the Inner Harbor dock here is for sale, but said no concrete offers had been received.

25 TRIBES TO BE PRESENT AT ISLAND INDIAN FESTIVAL

More tribes than ever before, 25 in all, will be represented this year at the annual Vancouver Island Indian Festival.

Festival president Percy Ross today announced the two-day festival will be held May 24 and 25 at Maple Bank Park. Full plans for the celebrations will be drawn next month.

"We are already certain of attendance of more tribes from B.C. and U.S. points. There will be 15 entries in the war canoe races. Tribal dances will also be increased. It will be the biggest festival we have ever held."

Waitress Guilty Of Jewel Theft

'Panicked' After Learning Value Of Find; Failed to Report Incident

Mrs. Elizabeth Speed, 2631 Doncaster, was found guilty in city court today of stealing a $3,000 diamond-embroidered bracelet from Empress Hotel, where she worked last September.

Magistrate H. C. Hall delivered judgment on the case after hearing evidence over the last two weeks.

He remanded Mrs. Speed for sentence to next Tuesday. He also ordered a probation report.

The mother of three will be kept in custody until sentence is passed.

Bracelet is the property of Mrs. Walter C. Koerner, Vancouver, who attended a reception at the hotel during a visit to Victoria last fall.

She lost the bracelet apparently when she removed a pair of long gloves at the reception, and discovered her loss at dinner a short time later.

When inquiries were made, you still did not turn it in. You had its value ascertained and still did not turn it in.

"When detectives approached you, you said you would get the bracelet for them, and you did. I am satisfied you knew early on this bracelet was valuable. Notwithstanding, you (treated it as if you had) ownership."

"I am satisfied your action amounted to theft. I find you guilty."

Defence for the accused submitted Mrs. Speed "panicked" when she learned the value of the bracelet and decided shortly before her arrest to go to the hotel manager and tell him the whole story.

WOMAN DEFIES BURGLAR'S ORDER

A plucky woman in her 80s faced up to a burglar who entered her bedroom at 3.30 a.m. today, shone a flashlight in her face and ordered "Don't get up and don't move."

Mrs. Margaret Tasker, Apartment No. 1, 730 Vancouver, replied, "I will so get up, and started to rise."

The burglar turned and fled without saying another word. Police believe the man entered by means of the front door, which normally is kept locked. The door opening awakened Mrs. Tasker.

She was afraid someone was after a sum of money which was to pay for hospital expenses of a sister.

The woman did not see the intruder's face because of the light in her eyes. Nothing was touched or stolen from the apartment and police searched the district without results.

JUST WALKED IN Mrs. Anne Young, 237 Mary, told police Wednesday she was alone and sick in bed last Friday when a good-looking, dark young woman with an accent walked into her home purporting to be selling magazine subscriptions.

"Who invited you in?" Mrs. Young wanted to know and ordered the woman out.

The woman, who stood about 5 feet, 11 inches tall, proceeded to comb her hair in front of Mrs. Young's mirror, then left.

Afterward Mrs. Young discovered a gold and chip diamond ring which has been left on the dresser was missing.

100-150 Jobs Coming Up On Campsites

The provincial parks branch will start work this week on a $700,000 work project to improve and enlarge campsites around B.C.

Approval for the plan has been received from Ottawa, which is contributing half the total cost under a project aimed at alleviating unemployment. Half the money must be spent on wages.

The parks branch expects to hire about 100 men for the work, and this figure may expand after March 31.

The men will be hired locally where the work is to be done.

PUBLISHER'S NOTEBOOK

From Bard to Verse

Tuesday night's bit in this space flushed out of hiding one of our favorite poets—"Oxonian," the bard of the British Public Schools Club, and only rival to Maurice Humber.

Here is "Oxonian's" rondelay, which he has entitled:

"THE PIGS WHO DIED IN VAIN"

"The Liberals are running like Gadarene swine,"

So says a young Tory—and all very fine; But what is the purpose of telling them this When they freely admit they don't know what it is?

"What does Gadarene mean?" asked Publisher Keate

Of his literate friends as they met in the street. "Gor blimey!" they answered, "ow would we know?"

We only left college five minutes ago. They live in bliss, monosyllabic and pure, A contemporaneous caricature

Of their ancestors' eras, cultured and spacious; They're smugly professional and ever so gracious!

But perhaps we malign these men—was the fault theirs? Were not those swine long ago putting on airs

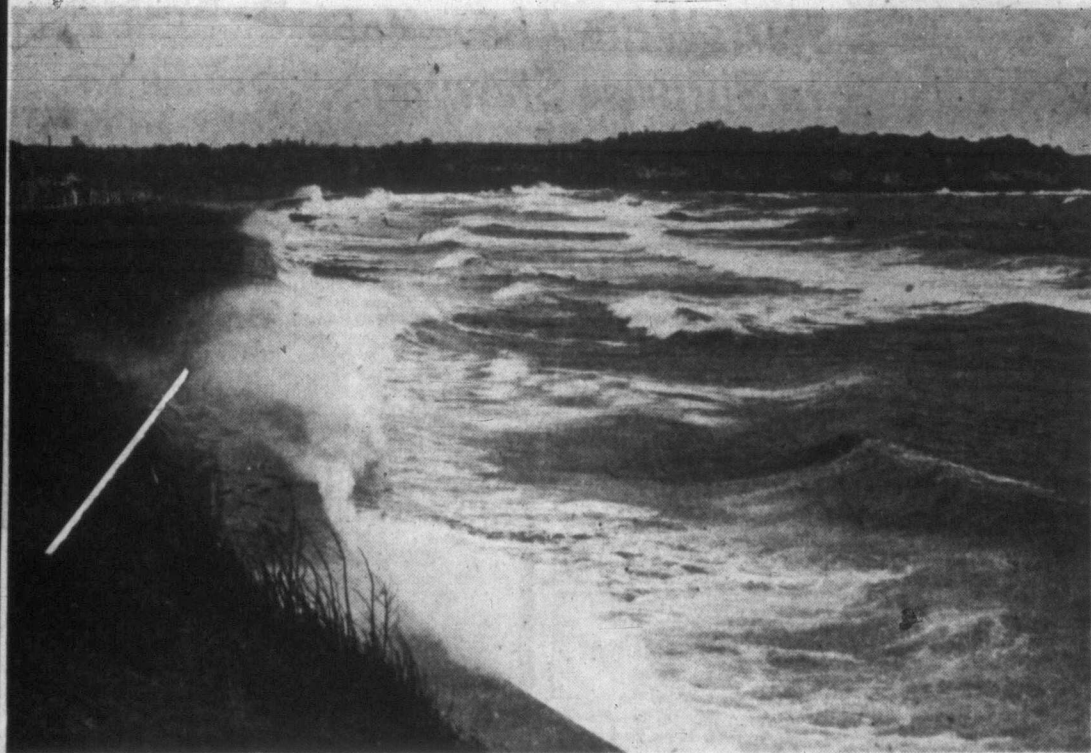

By performing obscurely their runaway deeds In Part II of a history book nobody reads?

How much better known would they be if they'd waited Till tourists were here in their thousands, breath bated,

On the Malahat, waiting as merry as grigs, For a view of the headlong century pigs!

It would seem when the Tories are alring their views Of the Liberals, much shorter words they must use;

And it's dull for the young who, fearless, dare libel. To find their opponent has not read the Bible.

WHITE-BEARDED BREAKERS smashed against retaining walls along the Dallas Road waterfront today as a storm bred in the Pacific to the southwest of Victoria produced gale-force winds gusting to more than 60 miles per hour. Seasonal high tides helped thrust waves over many of the retaining walls, created dramatic pictures such as one above taken at Ross Bay by Times cameraman Bill Halkett.

... HERE AND THERE ...

With NORMAN CRIBBENS

MRS. BUDA BROWN, vivacious Social Credit member for Vancouver - Point Grey, tells me she will have "lots more to say" during the current session of the Legislature, which opened this afternoon.

"Last year was my first term and I was just feeling my way," she said. "This term I hope to hit my stride..."

On the other side of the House, TOM UPHILL, lively 83-year-old Labor member for Fernie, will be addressing the assembly for the 38th year in succession.

"I'll make 'em laugh and I'll make 'em cry," says Tom. "I'll make 'em think, too."

Now he is Liberal leader in Ottawa, it may be fitting to recall two piquant questions asked by Lester Pearson when he sat in the United Nations Assembly as external affairs minister:

"Which is the better—freedom of speech or freedom from speeches?"

And again:

"What great uncharted areas should we explore next? The map of the world or the map of the mind?"

P. E. Hughes, of Saanich, was amused by my reference to a British political writer who stated in 1938 that Winston Churchill would never be Prime Minister of Great Britain.

"I was in the National Liberal Club in London just after the war," he writes, "and noticed a very fine painting of Churchill hanging over the stately mantelpiece.

"My host told me this picture had been shoved down in the cellar three times over the past 35 years. But," he said, "it always pops up again. You see we have to admit that, although he quit the Liberal Party for the Tories, he is still a very great man."

Cy Porter and Reg Nairne of Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau are wondering if the three seagulls painted on the roof of the bureau's car are a little too realistic.

Driving from Campbell River to Sayward this week, they were attacked by a ferocious white-headed eagle which made several power dives from a great height and threatened to drive its angry beak through the roof.

"We stepped on the gas and out-paced it before any damage was done," Cy said.

STORM CAUSED SLIDE, BLOCKS ALBERNI ROAD

Two rock and earth slides, caused by heavy overnight rains, blocked the Alberni-Nanaimo Highway at 3 a.m. today at Angel Rock, on the shore of Cameron Lake.

Highways department crews took a power shovel to the scene this morning, and hoped to have the road cleared by late today. All road traffic to and from the Alberni was halted.

At one time the road was cut into solid rock at this point in order to skirt Cameron Lake. The over-hanging rock crashed some years ago, and other slides have occurred at the spot.

WINDS OF 62 MPH SWEEP VICTORIA

Gale force winds blowing a steady 48 miles per hour with frequent gusts above 62 miles per hour lashed the Victoria area today, keeping small craft in shelter and whipping up a dramatic seascape along the Juan de Fuca Strait waterfront.

The winds were products of a storm from the southwest, which is expected to blow itself out overnight. But a new storm, with more gales, is expected Friday, accompanied by moist, mild air and heavy showers.

Only damage traceable to the storm was a 20-minute B.C. Electric blackout in the Esquimalt area this morning.

Winds this morning were from the southeast, and were expected to haul around westerly this afternoon before dying down this evening.

Temperatures are expected to continue in the 40s as Victoria continues to enjoy a mild January.

'Football-Like' Objects in Sky Proves Puzzler

A "football-like" object seen in the sky over Victoria Wednesday at 6 p.m. has officials at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory puzzled.

Mrs. W. J. Cull, 2057 Cadboro Bay Road said "I watched the object fully ten minutes. It seemed quite low, and disappeared towards the south-west."

Observatory officials discounted the suggestion that the object might have been Sputnik, "as one could see it for only five minutes, if that long, before it would be out of sight."

Mrs. Cull said the object did not appear to be a meteor, as it left no trail.

"It seemed to be going quite slowly and changed shades from red to a flame color."

Without a luminous trail, it could hardly have been a meteor, officials said.

Mrs. Cull could give no estimate of the object's height in the sky.

Refugee Adventurers Admit Theft of Boat

Five Hungarian immigrants pleaded guilty in city court today to theft of a $300 boat which carried them through stormy Juan de Fuca Strait to Port Angeles Sunday.

They had been held by U.S. immigration authorities for illegal entry to the U.S. and were returned to Victoria Wednesday.

The men, unemployed, took a boat owned by Robert Barnes, 15 Ontario (Canadian Immigration Building), to go fishing after Sunday lunch.

They landed at Port Angeles garbage dump near midnight and were picked up by police Monday in Port Angeles.

The five are Elmer Zvonar, Bela Bada, Joseph Toth, Laszlo Geczi and Joseph Labadi.

They jammed into the city police court prisoner's docket and heard the joint charge through an interpreter.

All are wards of the immigration department.

IMPROVISED OARS Detective Ray Maitland said they found the boat tied up in a bay near the immigration building and using improvised sticks for oars took it out of the harbor for their fishing trip.

Winds and tides took them away from shore and they were swept helplessly in an ebb tide toward the American shore.

As they neared Port Angeles they paddled for the beach, three jumped in, waded ashore and spent the night at a garbage dump fire.

The other two stayed with the boat and were taken further along by the current.

In the morning the first three went up town and were arrested by police. Meanwhile the others had made shore and also went uptown to meet their companions. All were picked up and turned over to immigration officers.

Magistrate H. C. Hall ordered probation reports on the five before sentence is fixed.

ESQUIMALT NAVAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

Ontario on cadet training cruise, returns Feb. 10.

Crescent, Cayuga, Fraser, Skeena and Margaree on training cruises, return April 2.

James Bay returns 3.30 p.m. Friday.

In addition, a two-month civil defence course for officers of units in the 25 Militia Group will start Tuesday and be held every other Tuesday in the armories.

Co-ordinator of the course will be Lieut. Col. Sidney Thompson, general staff officer.

Auto 'Repeater' Gets Prison Term

Stanley C. Rife, 1322 Stanley, was sentenced in city police court today to 30 days in jail for his third conviction for driving while under suspension.

Court heard a lengthy traffic record for Rife, dating from 1954.

He asked for "leniency because I'm going to be married and I've made up my mind I won't go near the car again."

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Publicity Commissioner George Warren has written to TV station CUBT in Vancouver complimenting the producers of a program showing Victoria gardens in blossom.

The Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities will meet in Victoria June 1 to 4. Four hundred copies of the folder "Follow the Birds to Victoria" have been sent to the federation's head office in Montreal.

Three new benches for use by the elderly have been set up on Government Street by the city engineer's department. Two are sponsored by the Victoria Chinese Lions Club and the third by the Victoria Lions Club.

Registrations for two Evening Division courses starting tonight at Victoria College will be accepted at 7.30, one-half hour prior to first lectures. The courses are "Fundamentals of Investment" and "Science and the Potter's Art."

Joseph Carver, president of the Chief and Petty Officers Association, will present cheques to Goodwill Enterprises and the Cerebral Palsy Association tonight at 8 in the chiefs' mess at HMCS Naden.

The 140-member association of retired naval men raised $50 for Goodwill Enterprises and $100 for CPA through a turkey draw last Christmas.

Commodore P. F. Fairfull of HMC Dockyard will represent the Vancouver Island branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada at a regional council meeting to be held in Calgary Jan. 24 and 25.

Victoria council finance committee today set March 10 as opening date for a court of revision to hear appeals against assessments for business tax purposes. Members of the court will be aldermen A. I. Curtis, Hugh Ramsay, E. D. McEwen, Mrs. Lily Wilson and Capt. D. J. Proudfoot.

Woodward Stores Ltd. is permitting options held in the Victoria City hall area to lapse, it was learned today.

Local store manager J. Courtney Haddock said he felt his firm had "gone as far as it can go" toward securing Commercial and Government Street properties as part of a $7,000,000 store site.

Ronald Pelkey, 20, Saanich Reserve who was fined $50 in city court for theft, was identified incorrectly Tuesday as a member of the Songhees Reserve.

Multiple Sclerosis Society today asked city council permission to hold a tag day this year. The local chapter seeks to raise $2,500 toward a national objective of $80,000. Funds are used to finance research which may bring about a cure for the disease.

Creation of a new parking lot for guests at the Empress Hotel is under "active consideration," a spokesman for the Canadian Pacific Railway said today.

Main difficulty, he said, is that the parking lot would have to be built on a section of the famous 10-acre flower gardens adjoining the hotel.

"This is the only area suitable," the spokesman said, "and it will be difficult to decide which section of the gardens should be cut into."

"So far no decision has been reached."

Victoria council is expected to spend $550 to bolster a weakening brick wall on the north side of the main fire hall on Cornorant Street. Although a new hall is planned for construction this year, council fire wardens committee agreed today it could not risk delaying the work. A report from the city engineer showed the wall to be seriously "out of plumb" and a fall of snow, if not cleared from the roof immediately, could cause a collapse.

Legs Get Cold at Hockey? Then Buy Yourself a Rug!

By PENNY SAVER

Sitting at the hockey game the other night, I happened to notice a number of wise people swathed in warm wool rugs. So, that's why my legs were cold, I concluded. No rug!

The very next day I started combing the town for one of these rugs... and what do you know? I found just the thing in one of the less-expensive shops here in Victoria. The rug I chose is in a Black Watch tartan and is large enough to cover several enthusiastic fans at a game. Why, with 54 inches by 66 inches of wool and fringe, I think I have something! The price will make you swoon... so take a breath, because these rugs are only $4.95!

I'm not complaining, but I hate leaping out of bed in the early morning on to a cold floor. As far as I'm concerned, it's like taking a cold bath! That's why I want to tell you about the attractive little scatter rugs I found today. They are 20 inches by 36 inches and come in a variety of warm colors. They're skid resistant, too, so you can't slip and slide from one side of the room to another.

At $1.95 each, no one in your family need jump out of bed on to a cold floor. If they do, they're not landing on the scatter rug next to the bed!

Now, if these aren't the dearest garbage cans! They're a rubber and plastic mix complete with a handle so there's no chance of mess in disposal. Another feature is the wide plastic rim around the bottom of the can, so nothing will run on the floor. This garbage disposal is so versatile, it could be used as a diaper pail, or a wash pail! The colors are many, so you can choose the tone that will go with your kitchen. The price? A mere $3.95!

I know that when I mention this next item, school students will perk up! It seems that the white or grey fleece-lined sweat shirt is still an accepted uniform for sports both indoors and out in local schools.

But, it seems to me, that at one time we paid a lot more than $1.95 for a shirt. Not now! (I just went to school at the wrong time, I guess!) These shirts have the regular crew neckline, long sleeves and ribbed waistband. A good buy for students who are ardent athletes!

Going shopping? Where? If you phone me at 2-3131, you'll save a few pennies.

"Book-of-the-Month, Record-of-the-Month, Fruit-of-the-Month, Gift-of-the-Month... all for Mrs. Sucker-of-the-Month!"

PARTY CAR POOL OBLIGATION

When our women's study club has its monthly meetings, I always drive. I usually call up enough members beforehand to fill my car, as it is much nicer to go that way than for each of us to drive alone. I notice that these women apparently feel that because we ride together that we must remain together throughout the meetings. Do you think that should consider this an obligation or what? I would like your opinion.

Louise Davis

Louise Davis Answers: No doubt this sticking together is more psychological than anything else. Some people like belonging to something, for it gives them a sense of security, and I suppose that is why your riders feel that it is easier to stay together, thus taking the line of least resistance. They probably are a bit timid or have a fear of intruding on others at the meeting. How much better if they would make a point of widening their horizons at the gathering by joining others. All are on equal ground as members of a group, so it would not be a case of intrusion at all. Mingling would give them pleasure as well as assurance and poise. Just because four or five of you ride in one car doesn't indicate a little private clique. It is just one convenient way of getting to and from a meeting, and breaking up the group is no indication that they are giving you the brush-off or that one is shunning the other.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Get Busy, Mister—or They'll Take You for Wife's Father

Men! Better balance the picture! Everywhere women are dieting and exercising and becoming or remaining slim, good looking and radiant. What man wants to be taken for his wife's father!?

It is true that women actually have turned the clock of age back at least 15 or 20 years. They became interested in weight and figure control much sooner than men. Men should like this because the little ladies took the trouble in order to please them. However—a bay-window looks no more attractive on a man than a protruding abdomen does on a woman.

It adds years to his appearance and fatigue to his life. The abdomen seems to be the first place to give a man's age and condition away. Overweight, lack of exercise, and a rich, heavy diet may lead to shortness of breath, weariness, high blood pressure, heart trouble and many other disagreeable and dangerous conditions.

Women demand much less stringent standards of attractiveness in their men than men do of their women. Nevertheless, they like to see you look attractive. Few of them dislike irregular features or a balding head but they are drawn by good posture, vitality and good grooming.

I know you are busy. I know you lead a rushed existence, but you are unfair to her as well as to yourself unless you have an interest in remaining as attractive and as youthful as possible.

Here is an exercise for that bay window. Have your heart and blood pressure checked and get going! Lie in the floor on your back with your hands clasped behind your head, legs straight. Bend the elbows forward by your face and lift your head as you bend the knees up close to the abdomen. Touch the elbows to the knees. If you can't do it you probably cannot see your shoestrings when you stand up. Return elbows, head and legs to the floor and continue.

If you would like a flying start on a reducing program, you may want my tubby hubby diet which gives you a loss of from seven to 12 pounds in 12 days' time. If so, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Skirts Whip Above Knee In Surprise Showing

FLORENCE, Italy (AP)—An Italian fashion designer Tuesday lifted skirts above the knee in a full retreat from the "new look."

Fabiani gave fashion buyers and writers something of a surprise as he uncovered the knee, which has been concealed for more than 10 years, and combined the short skirts with the sack style.

Fabiani said dresses in this "casual" collection would cost from $36 to $60—much less than the hundreds of dollars designers charge for their "high fashions."

Other designers in the show—billed as "sportswear and casuals"—also made a surprise bid for the ready-to-wear market. They continued the Italian trend of a hesitant approach to the sack—adopting it for some creations, but forgetting it for others.

Guidi really adopted it, when he showed it. He featured dresses made of burial sacks. Conservative Carosa presented dignified but very short black and white print floral dresses. They barely covered the knee.

AT LEGISLATIVE OPENING

Feminine Guests Wear Spring Hats Despite Dull Weather

Despite the fact that opening of the Legislature this afternoon came in a mid-winter month, feminine guests wore ultra smart ensembles that featured many new spring stylings. Flowers, feathers and gay colors were the choice in dresses, suits and millinery with accessories toned to match.

Mrs. Frank Mackenzie Ross, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia chose a gown of deep brown velvet designed on classic lines and showing point d'aiguille tinted lace at the deep neckline. She wore an imported model hat of beige Milan with all-over design of chenille dots. Her jewelry was pearls and she wore sable furs.

Seated with Mrs. Ross was Miss Ruth MacLean in a grey and white ensemble. Wing Cmdr. J. D. D. Campbell was the aide-de-camp.

An ink blue wool crepe dress, designed on straight lines with a slight flare at back of the skirt and styled with bands of pin tucks and iridescent bugle beads was choice of Mrs. W. A. C. Bennett, wife of the Premier. Her large picture hat of navy straw turned up at the back. It was trimmed with navy tulle and one huge pink rose. With this Mrs. Bennett wore black diamonds and a mink stole.

Seated with her was a son, R. J. Bennett, who came from Kelowna for the opening.

At their desks on the floor of the House were Mrs. Buda Brown and Mrs. Lois Haggan.

Mrs. Brown wore a wool dress and short jacket in beige tones. The collar and sleeves of the jacket were trimmed with stone martin fur. Her small beige hat was pill-box style touched with feathers and her jewelry was pearls.

A periwinkle blue dressmaker suit with white fur hat and black accessories was worn by Mrs. Kenneth Kiernan, wife of the Minister of Mines.

Black With White a Popular Choice

Pale green dressmaker suit was choice of Mrs. Lyle Wicks. With this she wore a white hat and brown accessories. A black velvet sheath dress with two-toned jacket in deep blue and black tones was worn by Mrs. Eric Martin. Her hat of beaver fur had a fur bow at the side. Her ensemble was completed with brilliant jewelry and a grey kidskin jacket.

A model sheath gown of black silk with scoop neckline and wide brimmed white velvet hat trimmed with white ostrich feather tips was worn by Mrs. Robert Bonner, wife of the Attorney-General. She topped her ensemble with a Chinese mink coat.

A sheath dress of fine French wool in navy blue with stylish white hat and Canadian squirrel stole was choice of Mrs. Wesley D. Black, wife of the provincial secretary.

Housewife Studies Aerial Photos Between Cooking, Caring for Son

OTTAWA (CP) — A pretty Port Credit, Ont., housewife spends her spare time studying aerial photographs as her contribution to a giant survey of Canada's dwindling caribou herds.

Mrs. Dorothy Beckel uses her experience with the Defence Research Board in the north and her training as a botanist to determine from the pictures the amount of caribou food available in the areas photographed.

Her studies are part of the 16-month survey to find out why the caribou population is diminishing.

CORRELATE FINDINGS

Findings of the housewife, who studies the pictures in her home between chores and raising one-year-old son, John, are correlated with findings of ground crews working on the survey.

Mrs. Beckel with her husband, William, also a biologist who teaches zoology at the University of Toronto, was in Ottawa Tuesday for the first national gathering of Canadian biologists from across the country.

Population of the western sub-Arctic caribou in a 600,000 square mile area between Hudson Bay and the Mackenzie River valley has dropped to under 300,000 from 670,000 since 1949.

She said "air photo interpretation" was a "pretty rough tool," but by studying the photographs she could analyze the vegetation and soil content of areas pictured.

ALBERTA NATIVE

She studied aerial photography at Cornell University before taking on the job for the Canadian wildlife service a year ago.

A native of Claresholm, Alta., the 33-year-old botanist graduated from the University of Toronto. She worked at Fort Churchill, Man., as a botanist with DRB for about three years before getting interested in photo interpretation.

Hospital at Kitimat Approved by Martin

Health Minister Eric Martin said today he has approved the calling of tenders for construction of a $3,700,000 hospital at Kitimat.

A delegation from Kitimat met the minister last week after he had held up approval.

The hospital society claimed the government was discriminating against Kitimat in insisting that the municipal council and the Aluminum Company of Canada guarantee to cover any operating deficits.

In his statement today, Mr. Martin said only that the hospital board had "now fulfilled its requirements."

Construction of the 113-bed hospital should get underway in early spring, the minister said, and should be completed within 18 months.

THE FORGOTTEN FEW

$10 a Month for Food

(To 765 Victorians on social assistance, life has become grim existence. They are the lowest in the city's social order. To them, a pensioner seems well-to-do. In many ways he is, for pensioners receive up to $25 more each month than an unemployed man or woman. City welfare officials feel it is high time the situation was rectified. Their reasons will be given in this series, along with reports of some Victorians who live an "assistance existence.")

By DINAH KERR

Their badge is a shopping bag—the symbol of their daily search for food.

We see them as they plod along the streets looking for bargains. Their bags are never full.

They are the elderly ladies on social assistance, living the long months and years between an income and an old-age pension.

We do not visit their rooms, so we cannot know the ugly lives they must lead for lack of money.

We can, however, hear the voice of one proud spinster whose home is one room in a poor hotel.

She would not allow her name to be printed because, she said, "I don't want other people to know."

A former nurse in France, Belgium and Holland, she has lived in Canada for seven years, and in B.C. for two.

The 75-year-old lady will not be eligible for a Canadian pension until 1960. She may not live that long.

In the meantime, she receives about $13 a month pension from England, her home country, and an additional $37 from the city health and welfare department.

Every Thursday she pays $10 for a room which has two chairs, a table, a bed, a dresser and a hotplate.

When there are five Thursdays in the month—such as this month—she has no money left over for food.

She meets these emergencies with "tea, bread and a bit of jam."

In "good months," she has $10 to spend for food, about 30 cents a day.

So the old lady eats one meal at mid-day, often soup.

She goes for walks sometimes but rarely sees green grass and trees. She is tired long before she reaches the outskirts of downtown Victoria. She cannot afford to ride the bus.

$1 in Bank Account

There is $1 in her bank account, and no one to turn to if unexpected troubles arise, such as the time she was injured in a fall and the doctor sent a bill for $14. She wrote to him and said she could not possibly pay.

For the next three months he sent a bill for $7.

"But he didn't send it last month," the old lady said. "And maybe it won't come next month. One day I hope I may be able to pay it."

Her only entertainment is a television set in the lobby.

The old lady is proud, but she needs help. That is why she can say in one breath "they're all so pleasant to me and I'm very comfortable," and in another, "If you could manage to get me a little more money, I'd be so grateful to you."

In Victoria there are 108 women whose stories are very similar. Most are over the age of 50.

Some, like the spinster whose story is told here, pay more for rent because they will not live in the squalor that goes with the lowest prices. But under present conditions, the nicer the room, the emptier the pantry.

(Friday's article will deal with a family of eight in which the father is physically incapable of holding a job.)

Cold Reception For Russ Party

LONDON (CP)—Britain has told Moscow she considers that Soviet scientists infringing British territory in landing recently on Zavodovski Island in the South Sandwich group.

A British note said Britain in future would appreciate advance notice of any intended Soviet surveys, landings or missions in territories which this country claims in the region of the Antarctic.

U.S. Ability to Avert Depression 'Uncertain'

OTTAWA (CP)—There still is some uncertainty about United States ability to prevent major depressions, two Canadian economists suggested in a report made public today.

This view, at variance with some American economists who say the U.S. has sufficient props to halt a major breakdown, was expressed in a report prepared for the Gordon economic commission by S. S. Reisman of the finance department and Professor Irving Brecher of McGill University.

Their report said that despite Canada's economic growth, Canada will be for many years "highly sensitive" to changes in the American business cycle.

"In the face of these observations, the question arises whether it now makes sense to discuss future Canadian sensitivity in the context of the 1929-33 type of American recession."

The record of the past 10 years suggests that the American economic and financial structure has probably achieved enough built-in stability and American economic policy enough maturity to make

Egypt to Free Israeli Crew

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United Nations announced Wednesday night that Egypt is releasing the crew of the Israeli fishing boat Doran, seized in the Mediterranean last Sept. 23.

A UN spokesman said Egypt has so informed Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld, who had taken the matter up with President Nasser during a Christmas-time visit to Cairo.

More Aid for B.C. Cities Promised in Throne Speech

Public Schools, Municipal Acts To Be Revamped

By PETER MURRAY
Times Legislative Reporter

More provincial aid for B.C. cities and municipalities was pledged by the government today in the Speech from the Throne read at the opening of the new legislative session.

The Speech, read by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, contained no surprises.

It told of the government's legislative program for the session, including forecast amendments to the Forestry Act, Public Schools Act and Municipal Act.

No hint was given what form the new aid to municipalities will take. One likelihood is increased financial contributions by the provincial government toward development of main roads.

The Speech, written by Premier Bennett, disclosed the government will submit a revised Public Schools Act at this session.

Following the appointment last week of a three-man royal commission to inquire into the B.C. education system, there was speculation the government might put off the revision until the commission report was received.

Reorganization of the provincial jail system this year as the result of the opening of the Haney Correctional Institution was forecast in the Speech.

One of the changes planned by the government is believed

Throne Speech Highlights

1. More aid to municipalities.
2. New forestry legislation.
3. Reorganization of provincial jail system.
4. Revision of Public Schools Act.
5. Changes to Municipal Act.
6. Revision of municipal employees superannuation plan.

to be abolition of the New Haven Boral Home. Also to be submitted to the legislature this session will be proposals to increase the province's vocational and apprenticeship education program.

Adequate Pensions for City Workers

The Municipal Superannuation Act will be amended at this session.

"This legislation will enable realistic and adequate superannuation allowances for municipal employees upon their retirement from municipal service." Amendments will also be made to the Public Services Medical Plan Act for government employees, which was proclaimed last summer.

"Bugs" in the new Municipal Act which showed up after it was hastily pushed through at the last session will be dealt with.

One change is expected to see the regulation of store closing hours given back to the municipalities.

The Throne Speech said the government intends at this session to implement "certain recommendations" of the Sloan Royal Commission report on forestry.

One is expected to include the creation of regional boards and a central advisory council to assist the government on forestry matters.

The government has already started this program with the appointment of Gordon Sloan as $50,000-a-year forestry adviser, in which position he would serve as chairman of the advisory council.

Sloan Appointment To Be Hot Topic

The Sloan report and his subsequent appointment are expected to be the hottest subjects at this session.

On the unemployment problem, which the CCF will also raise during the session, the Throne Speech said:

"My government will, on their own, and in co-operation with the national and municipal governments, do everything possible to increase employment and to assist those who, through reasons beyond their control cannot find employment."

The speech said "tight money" is continuing to have a harmful effect on the economy.

The government expects this year to receive the Crippen-Wright engineering study on the hydro potential of the Columbia River, the Throne Speech disclosed.

It was also stated that soil surveys of the Columbia River basin undertaken by the International Joint Commission have now been completed.

The Throne Speech also paid tribute to former Premier John Hart and former Social Credit cabinet member Ralph Chetwynd, who died last year.

TWO NEW MLAS SPEAK FRIDAY

Two new MLAs will make their maiden speeches in the House Friday.

William Speare (S-Carlbo) will move the reply to the Speech from the Throne, and Dr. Gordon Gibson (S-Delta) will be the seconder.

Heavy Snow Stalls Trains in Scotland

LONDON (AP)—Two passenger trains were stalled today by snowdrifts in Scotland, and naval and air force helicopters stood ready to take help to isolated villages as the severe cold wave continued in Britain.

One train was stalled near Banff and another was held up between Maud and Fraserburgh. There passengers remained in the cars, which are heated, and were able to get food from a hotel.

Parade Ground Like Lake as General Inspects Pats

First formal inspection here of the First Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, was held today on a wet parade square at Work Point Barracks. Inspecting officer was Major-General

Bloody Revolt Ousts Venezuela Dictator

... flees country

CARACAS, Venezuela (UP)—Military and civilian forces overthrew the dictatorship of President Marcos Perez Jimenez in a bloody revolution early today and sent him fleeing into exile. But fighting continued in the centre of the city at mid-day.

A military junta, which took over from the deposed president's regime after two days of bloody street fighting by civilians led by a newspaper reporter named Fabricio Ojeda, sent its armed forces against secret police headquarters in the heart of Caracas.

The new fighting threatened to add to the casualties of the past two days that already had mounted to an estimated 200 killed and 1,000 injured.

The secret police building

became the focus of the revolt after the new junta headed by Rear-Adm. Wolfgang Larrazabal ordered political prisoners freed and a number of other reforms instituted immediately. More than 1,000 political prisoners were turned loose. But when a crowd converged on the secret police headquarters, a die-hard group of security agents who apparently had decided to fight rather than surrender opened fire. Four persons were killed. A crowd of 10,000 tried to rout the secret policemen.

Troops Attack Secret Agents

The junta's armed forces then were brought up. Heavy machine gun and rifle fire broke out between army units and the secret police agents barricaded inside their headquarters.

The attacking army units were unable immediately to dislodge the secret police, who apparently decided not to give up in fear the revengeful crowds would seek to take things into their own hands.

The army asked for air support, and it looked as though air force planes would bomb and strafe the building unless the beleaguered security agents came out. National Guard forces co-operated with army in trying to clear the civilian demonstrators from the area so that the air attack could begin.

Perez Jimenez, his family and his aides, reached safety in Ciudad Trujillo, capital of the Dominican Republic. His nearly 10 years of dictatorial power were at an end.

The fate of former Argentine dictator Juan D. Peron, who was given refuge by Perez Jimenez, was not immediately clear, although the new government was expected to kick him out of Venezuela.

OTTAWA (BUP)—The external affairs department said today it had received no report of Canadian injuries in this morning's Venezuelan uprising.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

Father God, I am grateful today that through Christ's triumph I need no longer fear death. But love and sorrow seem to go together, and I find it hard to overcome the sorrow that is mine because a dear one has died. Help me today to develop a stronger faith so that life and death may have meaning for me in the pattern of Christian triumph. Amen.

LIQUOR EARNS $25 MILLION FOR PROVINCE

Liquor continues to be one of the province's biggest money-makers.

Public accounts tabled in the legislature today show the Liquor Control Board made a net profit of $25,048,630 in the fiscal year ended last March 31.

This represents an increase of almost $2,500,000 over the previous year.

Total sales during the 1956-57 fiscal year were $88,201,269. This was made up of $63,118,245 in sales to the public and $25,083,023 to licensees.

Atom Fuel To Compete With Coal

HAMILTON (CP)—The nuclear energy division of Canadian Westinghouse Limited Wednesday night disclosed plans of an atomic reactor which it says will help make nuclear power competitive with coal.

The reactor, designed by the division and ready for production uses raw uranium for fuel instead of the enriched uranium usually used in similar reactors.

V. V. Mason, division manager, said the design could produce power as little as 6.5 mills a kilowatt hour, compared with four to five mills for present coal-operated systems.

It was a major stride to bringing nuclear power to a position where it might be competitive with coal.

Hoffa to Take Office As Injunction Lifted

WASHINGTON (AP)—A compromise settlement of a suit today paved the way for James R. Hoffa to take office immediately as president of the teamsters union.

Federal District Judge F. Dickinson Letts dissolved a temporary injunction barring Hoffa from taking over as head of the union.

The judge also approved a proposal worked out by opposing lawyers to set up a "board of monitors" to watch over affairs of the union.

Under the compromise, Judge Letts retains jurisdiction over the suit brought by 13 New York area dissident members of the union alleging that Hoffa's election was rigged.

Rival lawyers termed the settlement beneficial to the public and to the general membership of the teamsters.

NEW ATTEMPT FRIDAY TO END PULP STRIKE

Fourth attempt to settle the province-wide pulp strike which entered its 11th week today will be made Friday.

John Sherman, vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers, announced this morning in Vancouver that negotiations will reopen.

Curb Union Abuses Ike Asks Congress

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today urged Congress to curb "corruption, racketeering and abuse of trust and power in the labor-management field." He made the recommendation in a proposal for legislation.

Eisenhower recommended specifically that unions be subject to loss of legal bargaining status if they do not file true and proper data on their finances and other subjects.

Against a background of congressional inquiries disclosing abuses in the labor-management field, Eisenhower called for legislation "to benefit and protect the welfare of American workers and the general public."

He added it should "curb abuses," and provide greater harmony and stability in labor-management relations.

Labor leaders contend the program goes too far and management spokesmen say it does not go far enough.

PANIC, HEROISM IN CHICAGO APARTMENT FIRE

'Babies Fell Like Raindrops'

CHICAGO (AP)—A fire and explosion spread havoc through a crowded south side apartment building early today and in the frenzy to escape many children were dropped from windows of the four-story building.

One infant died and at least six other children were unaccounted for. One man also was missing. At least 21 were injured, including nine children.

"The babies were falling like raindrops," said Jack McMillan, 31, who rushed to the scene where he said he caught five children dropped from windows. He fractured a thumb while catching one child.

There were numerous stories of heroism. One tenant, L. D. Dixon, 30, dropped to the ground from the third floor, then caught his wife, Albertan, 27, and their seven-year-old son. Harvey Lawrence, 30, threw his six children one after another into arms of spectators, and then rescued nine other children by dropping them from a window.

U.K. Cabinet Faces New Split

Proposed Cut in Welfare Program Sparks New Row Among Ministers

LONDON (Reuters)—A new split was reported in Prime Minister Macmillan's government today over costs of Britain's welfare program.

has grown in stature, she will be for many years "highly sensitive" to down in the American business cycle.

On other fronts it said that international unions with U.S. headquarters dominate the Canadian labor scene; that Canadian wages generally are about one-quarter less than those in the U.S.; that Canada is about 20 or 30 per cent behind the U.S. in generating wealth; and that compared with the advantages, the disadvantages of growing U.S. investment in Canada are not great.

But while indicating that Canada may tend to "catch up" with the U.S. in the accumulation of wealth, the report had some sharp things to say about present American commercial policy.

TARIFF OBSTACLE
It criticized American handling of its tariff laws and said that on some consumer goods the United States tariff is 100 per cent of the product's value.

The high American tariff, aimed particularly at manufactured products, tended to force some plants to be located in the United States rather than in Canada.

"... It is the tariff obstacle which has had the greatest distorting impact on Canadian economic growth."

Many Canadian manufacturers had to be content to supply only the relatively small Canadian market.

"Being geared, accordingly, to the needs of a comparatively small market, they labor under the cost disadvantages inherent in short and non-specialized production runs."

"The basic effect of United States commercial policy, therefore, has been to deprive potentially significant Canadian industries of the scale economies which would make a vital contribution to their competitiveness in world markets."

SOVIETS FORCE CHANGE
But the situation might change. There was a tendency in the U.S. to look towards more generous treatment of foreign producers. The U.S. had a position to maintain in the Western world.

Soviet economic power had increased at such a "remarkable" pace as to call into question the traditional assumption of the automatic and indefinite maintenance of Western economic supremacy.

"Indeed the time for bold Western measures on the economic front may be fast approaching and it is difficult to see how the U.S.—given its overwhelming economic power and an understanding of the political and economic facts of international life—can long avoid taking the lead with strong unilateral easing of the conditions of access to the American market."

But that was only a long-range look. This did not preclude American protectionism gaining strength in the next few years.

On American farm policies, the report said the entrenched position of the American farm bloc, the magnitude of American surpluses and continuing high production "lend strong support to the view that over the short run at least, Canada may expect to trade in world agricultural markets increasingly distorted by U.S. farm policies."

Canada could "realistically expect the threat of further market losses in overseas countries as well as in the U.S.," and the uncertainty of the future could impose "additional limitations on the production results achieved by Canadian farmers."

"Difficult adjustments are likely to confront Canadian agriculture in the next few years as consequence of U.S. agricultural policy."

Legs Get Cold at Hockey? Then Buy Yourself a Rug!

By PENNY SAVER

Sitting at the hockey game the other night, I happened to notice a number of wise people swathed in warm wool rugs. So, that's why my legs were cold, I concluded. No rug!

The very next day I started combing the town for one of these rugs... and what do you know? I found just the thing in one of the less-expensive shops here in Victoria. The rug I chose is in a Black Watch tartan and is large enough to cover several enthusiastic fans at a game. Why, with 54 inches by 66 inches of wool and fringe, I think I have something! The price will make you swoon... so take a breath, because these rugs are only $4.95!

I'm not complaining, but I hate leaping out of bed in the early morning on to a cold floor. As far as I'm concerned, it's like taking a cold bath! That's why I want to tell you about the attractive little scatter rugs I found today. They are 20 inches by 36 inches and come in a variety of warm colors. They're skid resistant, too, so you can't slip and slide from one side of the room to another.

At $1.95 each, no one in your family need jump out of bed on to a cold floor. If they do, they're not landing on the scatter rug next to the bed!

Now, if these aren't the dandiest garbage cans! They're a rubber and plastic mix complete with a handle so there's no chance of mess in disposal. Another feature is the wide plastic rim around the bottom of the can, so nothing will run on the floor. This garbage disposal is so versatile, it could be used as a diaper pail, or a wash pail! The colors are many, so you can choose the tone that will go with your kitchen. The price? A mere $3.95!

I know that when I mention this next item, school students will perk up! It seems that the white or grey fleecy-lined sweat shirt is still an accepted uniform for sports both indoors and out in local schools.

But, it seems to me, that at one time we paid a lot more than $1.95 for a shirt. Not now! (I just went to school at the wrong time, I guess!) These shirts have the regular crew neckline, long sleeves and ribbed waistband. A good buy for students who are ardent athletes!

Going shopping? Where? If you phone me at 2-3131, you'll save a few pennies.

PARTY CAR POOL OBLIGATION

When our women's study club has its monthly meetings, I always drive. I usually call up enough members beforehand to fill my car, as it is much nicer to go that way than for each of us to drive alone. I notice that these women apparently feel that because we ride together that we must remain together throughout the meetings. Do you think that they should consider this an obligation or what? I would like your opinion.

Louise Davis

Louise Davis Answers:
No doubt this sticking together is more psychological than anything else. Some people like belonging to something, for it gives them a sense of security, and I suppose that is why your riders feel that it is easier to stay together, thus taking the line of least resistance. They probably are a bit timid or have a fear of intruding on others at the meeting. How much better if they would make a point of widening their horizons at the gathering by joining others. All are on equal ground as members of a group, so it would not be a case of intrusion at all. Mingling would give them pleasure as well as assurance and poise. Just because four or five of you ride in one car doesn't indicate a little private clique. It is just one convenient way of getting to and from a meeting, and breaking up the group is no indication that they are giving you the brush-off or that one is shunning the other.

TODAY'S RECIPE

CAULIFLOWER WITH EGG SAUCE

One medium-sized cauliflower, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 2 tablespoons flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, dash pepper, 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 cup milk, 2 hard-boiled eggs, coarsely chopped, 1 cup corn flakes, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted.

Remove leaves and stalk of cauliflower. Soak in salted water about 30 minutes; drain. Cook in boiling salted water about 20 minutes. Drain carefully; put into greased oven-proof serving dish or casserole. Melt butter, stir in flour and seasonings. Add milk gradually, stirring constantly; cook until thickened, stirring occasionally. Fold in eggs. Pour over cauliflower. Crush corn flakes slightly; combine with melted butter. Sprinkle over sauce. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees F.) about 25 minutes or until crumbs are browned and cauliflower is thoroughly heated. Serve at once. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

Little-Pig Potatoes — Scrub medium-sized potatoes. Make a hole through each potato with a apple corer. Stuff hole with a sausage. Place on rack over baking pan and bake in 425 degree F. oven about 50 minutes.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Get Busy, Mister—or They'll Take You for Wife's Father

Men! Better balance the picture! Everywhere women are dieting and exercising and becoming or remaining slim, good looking and radiant. What man wants to be taken for his wife's father!?

It is true that women actually have turned the clock of age back at least 15 or 20 years. They became interested in weight and figure control much sooner than men. Men should like this because the little ladies took the trouble in order to please them. However—a bay-window looks no more attractive on a man than a protruding abdomen does on a woman.

It adds years to his appearance and fatigue to his life. The abdomen seems to be the first place to give a man's age and condition away. Overweight, lack of exercise, and a rich, heavy diet may lead to shortness of breath, weariness, high blood pressure, heart trouble and many other disagreeable and dangerous conditions. Women demand much less stringent standards of attractiveness in their men than men do of their women. Nevertheless, they like to see you look attractive. Few of them dislike irregular features or a balding head but they are drawn by good posture, vitality and good grooming.

I know you are busy. I know you lead a rushed existence, but you are unfair to her as well as to yourself unless you have an interest in remaining as attractive and as youthful as possible. Here is an exercise for that bay window. Have your heart and blood pressure checked and the elbows to the knees. If you can't do it you probably cannot see your shoestrings when you stand up. Return elbows, head and legs to the floor and continue.

If you would like a flying start on a reducing program, you may want my tubby hubby diet which gives you a loss of from seven to 12 pounds in 12 days' time. If so, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Skirts Whip Above Knee In Surprise Showing

Fabiani gave fashion-buyers and writers something of a surprise as he uncovered the knee, which has been concealed for more than 10 years, and combined the short skirts with the sack style.

Fabiani said dresses in this "casual" collection would cost from $36 to $60—much less than the hundreds of dollars designers charge for their "high fashions."

Other designers in the show—billed as "sportswear and casuals"—also made a surprise bid for the ready-to-wear market. They continued the Italian trend of a hesitant approach to the sack—adopting it for some creations, but forgetting it for others.

Guidi really adopted it, when he showed it. He featured dresses made of burlap sacks. Conservative Carosa presented dignified but very short black and white print floral dresses. They barely covered the knee.

How You Can Be Younger Than You Are

You begin to show the signs of age in your thirties. How much depends on your ancestors, on the sickness and mishaps in your life—and on you. But if you are wise you can be younger on your next birthday than you are today.

Why are some people wrinkled and creaky at thirty, while others have fresh faces, active bodies and enquiring minds at seventy? To learn how you can be younger than you are, read the February issue of Chateleine Magazine. On sale at all newsstands January 23rd. Only 20c. Get your copy of February Chateleine today.

McINTOSH APPLES

RANCH PUDDING

4 cups sliced apples
2 tablespoons water
1/2 cup sugar
1 1/2 cups biscuit mix
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1 egg, beaten

Place apples in greased baking dish, sprinkle with water and 1/4 cup sugar. Combine biscuit mix, 1/2 cup sugar and cinnamon. Add beaten egg slowly, stirring constantly, to make a crumbly mixture. Sprinkle over fruit. Dot with butter. Bake in hot oven 400° F. about 25 minutes. Serve with cream.

APPLE CRISP

5 to 6 apples
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
2 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup flour
1/2 cup shortening

Peel and slice apples into greased baking dish, sprinkle with the 1/4 cup sugar and spices. Add the water and lemon juice. Combine brown sugar and flour, work in shortening to make a crumbly mixture.

Spread over apples and bake, uncovered, in a 350° F. oven about 45 to 50 minutes, or until apples are tender and crumbly crust is slightly browned. Serve warm with cream.

BAKED APPLE PUDDING

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup butter
1 cup granulated sugar
1 egg, unbeaten
2 cups grated apples

Sift together flour, soda, spices and salt. Mix butter with sugar, beat until very light and fluffy. Add unbeaten egg, mix well. Add grated apple. Add flour mixture, stirring just until mixed.

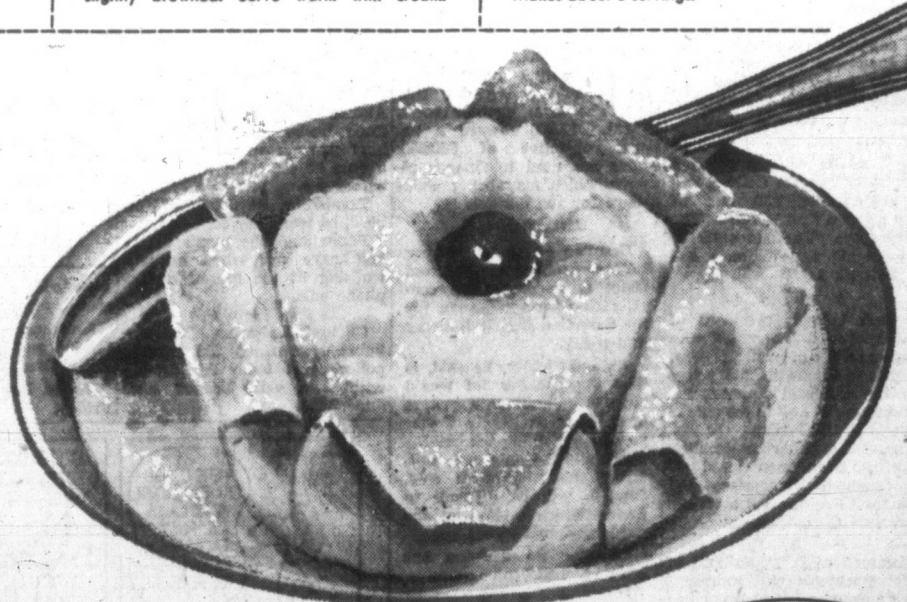

Pour into greased 8-inch square pan. Bake in hot oven 400° F. about 25 minutes, or until done. Serve warm with vanilla or rum sauce. Makes about 8 servings.

B.C. BAKED APPLE

Select uniform apples. Wash, remove core and score all around about 1/8 from the top, or peel the top third of the apple.

Place apples in shallow baking pan, add syrup made by boiling 1/2 cup sugar and 1/2 cup water for 5 minutes. Bake in 350° F. oven for 45 to 60 minutes, or until easily pierced with fork. Taste occasionally during baking.

For variation fill the centres of the apples with different fillings, such as raisins, dried fruits and nuts, marshmallows or mincemeat. Bake as above.

Snack Time Is Apple Time

B.C. McIntosh make the ideal snack... refreshing, wholesome, and so handy. Always keep a bowl of apples out where the whole family can "dig in" any time... and be sure to put an apple in every lunch box, too!

THRONE SPEECH PROMISE

B.C. CITIES GET MORE AID

Parade Ground Like Lake as General Inspects Pats

First formal inspection here of the First Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, was held today on a wet parade square at Work Point Barracks. Inspecting officer was Major-General

The 650 members of the unit moved as one man and stood like ramrods to commands of Major Vincent Lilley, the battalion's second in command. (Times photo by Irving Strickland.)

Public Schools,
Municipal Acts
To Be RevampedBy PETER MURRAY
Times Legislative Reporter

More provincial aid for B.C. cities and municipalities was pledged by the government today in the Speech from the Throne read at the opening of the new legislative session.

The Speech, read by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, contained no surprises.

It told of the government's legislative program for the session, including forecast amendments to the Forestry Act, Public Schools Act and Municipal Act.

No hint was given what form the new aid to municipalities will take. One likelihood is increased financial contributions by the provincial government toward development of main roads.

The Speech, written by Premier Bennett, disclosed the government will submit a revised Public Schools Act at this session.

Following the appointment last week of a three-man royal commission to inquire into the B.C. education system, there was speculation the government might put off the revision until the commission report was received.

Reorganization of the provincial jail system this year as the result of the opening of the Haney Correctional Institution was forecast in the Speech.

One of the changes planned by the government is believed to be abolition of the New Haven Borstal Home.

Also to be submitted to the legislature this session, will be

FINAL BULLETINS

House Rejects CCF Motion

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons today rejected, 130 to 39, a CCF motion that in effect would have killed for this session the government's farm stabilization bill.

Social Credit members and three Liberals supported the CCF on the vote, which came on an amendment that would have referred the subject matter of the legislation to the Commons agriculture committee for study.

U.K. Tories Defeat Labor Motion

LONDON (Reuters)—The government won a vote of confidence for its anti-inflationary policies tonight, defeating a Labor party no-confidence motion by a vote of 324 to 262 in the House of Commons.

Weather Delays Fuchs Trek

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (Reuters)—Bad weather has held up the departure of British explorer Sir Vivian Fuchs from the South Pole on the second stage of his overland crossing of the Antarctic continent.

An earlier report (see page 2) said Dr. Fuchs' expedition had already left the pole.

U.K. Market Fire Still Raging

LONDON (Reuters)—Hundreds of smoke-blackened firemen failed today to quell an underground inferno that killed two fire-fighters beneath London's big Smithfield meat market.

Fourteen hours after the blaze began, the firemen still had not got it under control. They predicted it would burn all night and possibly through Friday.

2 Bomarc Sites for Northwest

SEATTLE (AP)—Two multi-million-dollar Bomarc missile launching sites will be built in the Pacific Northwest—one in western Oregon and the other in western Washington—the U.S. army engineers announced today.

U.S. Defence Step-Up Moved

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate's missile-satellite investigators recommended unanimously today a broad program to reshape and strengthen United States defenses. The committee headed by Senator Lyndon B. Johnson (Dem., Tex.) settled on a plan providing for a step-up in both manned aircraft and ballistic missiles.

Curb Union Abuses
Ike Asks Congress

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower today urged Congress to curb "corruption, racketeering and abuse of trust and power in the labor-management field." He made the recommendation in a proposal for legislation.

Eisenhower recommended specifically that unions be subject to loss of legal bargaining status if they do not file true and proper data on their finances and other subjects.

Against a background of congressional inquiries disclosing abuses in the labor-management field, Eisenhower called for legislation "to benefit and protect the welfare of American workers and the general public."

He added it should "curb abuses," and provide greater harmony and stability in labor-management relations.

Labor leaders contend the program goes too far and management spokesmen say it does not go far enough.

Bloody Revolt Ousts
Venezuela Dictator

CARACAS, Venezuela (UP)—Military and civilian forces overthrew the dictatorship of President Marcos Perez Jimenez in a bloody revolution early today and sent him fleeing into exile. But fighting continued in the centre of the city at mid-day.

A military junta, which took over from the deposed president's regime after two days of bloody street fighting by civilians led by a newspaper reporter named Fabricio Ojeda, sent its armed forces against secret police headquarters in the heart of Caracas.

The new fighting threatened to add to the casualties of the past two days that already had mounted to an estimated 200 killed and 1,000 injured.

The secret police building

became the focus of the revolt after the new junta headed by Rear-Adm. Wolfgang Larrazabal ordered political prisoners freed and a number of other reforms instituted immediately.

More than 1,000 political prisoners were turned loose. But when a crowd converged on the secret police headquarters, a die-hard group of security agents who apparently had decided to fight rather than surrender opened fire. Four persons were killed. A crowd of 10,000 tried to rout the secret policemen.

Troops Attack Secret Agents

The junta's armed forces then were brought up. Heavy machine gun and rifle fire broke out between army units and the secret police agents barricaded inside their headquarters.

The attacking army units were unable immediately to dislodge the secret police, who apparently decided not to give up in fear of the revengeful crowds would seek to take things into their own hands.

The army asked for air support, and it looked as though air force planes would bomb and strafe the building unless the beleaguered security agents came out.

National Guard forces co-operated with army in trying to clear the civilian demonstrators from the area so that the air attack could begin.

Perez Jimenez, his family and his aides, reached safety in Ciudad Trujillo, capital of the Dominican Republic. His nearly 10 years of dictatorial power were at an end.

The fate of former Argentine dictator Juan D. Peron, who was given refuge by Perez Jimenez, was not immediately clear, although the new government was expected to kick him out of Venezuela.

OTTAWA (BUP)—The external affairs department said today it had received no report of Canadian injuries in this morning's Venezuelan uprising.

Hoffa to Take Office
As Injunction Lifted

WASHINGTON (AP)—A compromise settlement of a suit today paved the way for James R. Hoffa to take office immediately as president of the teamsters' union.

Federal District Judge F. Dickinson Letts dissolved a temporary injunction barring Hoffa from taking over as head of the union.

The judge also approved a proposal worked out by opposing lawyers to set up a "board of monitors" to watch over affairs of the union.

Under the compromise, Judge Letts retains jurisdiction over the suit brought by 13 New York area dissident members

Atom Fuel
To Compete
With Coal

HAMILTON (CP)—The nuclear energy division of Canadian Westinghouse Limited Wednesday night disclosed plans of an atomic reactor which it says will help make nuclear power competitive with coal.

The reactor, designed by the division and ready for production, uses raw uranium for fuel instead of the enriched uranium usually used in similar reactors.

V. V. Mason, division manager, said the design could produce power as little as 6.5 mills a kilowatt hour, compared with four to five mills for present coal-operated systems.

NEW CHIEF JUSTICE?

Member of the B.C. bar since 1919, Thomas G. Norris, prominent Vancouver lawyer, is one of two men being considered by Prime Minister Diefenbaker for appointment as chief justice of British Columbia. It was reported from Ottawa today. Name of the second person was not revealed. The post has been vacant since Jan. 1 when Chief Justice Gordon Sloan resigned to become forestry adviser to the B.C. government.

TWO NEW MLAS
SPEAK FRIDAY

Two new Social Credit members in the provincial legislature will make their maiden speeches in the House Friday. William Speare (SC-Cariboo) will move the reply to the Speech from the Throne, and Dr. Gordon Gibson (SC-Delta) will be the second.

LIQUOR EARNS
$25 MILLION

Liquor continues to be one of the province's biggest money-makers.

Public accounts tabled in the legislature today show the Liquor Control Board made a net profit of $25,048,630 in the fiscal year ended last March 31.

This represents an increase of almost $2,500,000 over the previous year.

Total sales during the 1956-57 fiscal year were $88,201,269. This was made up of $63,118,245 in sales to the public and $25,083,023 to licensees.

Vancouver Stocks
Closing Prices

VANCOUVER—Closing sales: 1,000 Basco at $5, 200 Bralorne at $5.10, 5,000 Cariboo at $2, 100 Trojan at $4, 500 Skeena at $11, 1,000 Premier Border at $8, 25 Inland Gas at $7.25.

Record revenues of $270,783,792 were collected by the provincial government in the fiscal year ended last March 31, the public accounts tabled in the legislature today disclosed.

This represented an increase of $43,530,418 over the 1955-56 fiscal year.

The public accounts give no clue to the state of the government's revenues in the current year, but it is almost certain they will not have accelerated at the same rate.

All eyes will be focussed on the budget to be brought down by Premier Bennett in a few weeks' time, when the controller-general's report will give an accounting of revenues for the first nine months of the current year.

There is increasing evidence that the general slump in the economy during 1957 was felt by the government, particularly in its revenue from the forest industry.

LIABILITIES UP

The public accounts showed an increase of $100,000,000 in the government's contingent liabilities during the 1956-57 fiscal year.

These are borrowings of agencies such as the B.C. Power Commission, PGE and Toll Highways and Bridges Authority which are guaranteed by the government.

The total of these liabilities stood at $241,334,638 at last March 31.

During the 1956-57 year the direct debt was decreased by $27,727,470 and fixed assets were increased by $61,395,561 for an improvement of $85,668,145 in the balance sheet.

From the $270,000,000 in revenues, $14,343,996 went to fixed debt charges, $158,672,344 for current services, $31,984,533 for hospital insurance service, and $62,916,130 for capital expenditure out of income.

This left a revenue surplus of $6,512,505 for the year, which together with a withdrawal of $8,187,494 from the revenue surplus account enabled a supplementary sinking fund installment of $15,000,000.

U.S. Tariff Policy Slows
Expansion Plans of Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Two Canadian authorities say a tough United States tariff policy is crippling Canada's potential industrial expansion but the rise of Soviet economic power may force the United States to reduce her import barriers.

That thesis was set out in a special 34-page study prepared for the Gordon economic commission and made public today. Authors are Professor Irving Brecher, of McGill University, and S. S. Reisman, the finance department's director of international economic relations.

The report, containing one of the most penetrating analyses yet made of Canada—United States economic relationships, sharply criticized American tariff and farm programs. It warned that United States surplus giveaways and other schemes may lead to further losses of Canadian export markets during the next few years and impose new hardships on Canadian farmers.

The long-range future appeared more optimistic. But the commission was told that although present American farm policies may not persist over the next quarter-century, this was not to "dismiss the danger of lasting injurious effects on international trade relations and on the economies of the world's major trading nations."

The report questioned whether in fact the U.S. could really avert major depressions and concluded that although Canada

Proposed Cut in Welfare Program Sparks New Row Among Ministers

LONDON (Reuters)—A new split was reported in Prime Minister Macmillan's government today over costs of Britain's welfare program.

...TARIFFS

has grown in stature, she will be for many years "highly sensitive" to downs in the American business cycle.

On other fronts it said that international unions with U.S. headquarters dominate the Canadian labor scene; that Canadian wages generally are about one-quarter less than those in the U.S.; that Canada is about 20 or 30 per cent behind the U.S. in generating wealth; and that compared with the advantages, the disadvantages of growing U.S. investment in Canada are not great. But while indicating that Canada may tend to "catch up" with the U.S. in the accumulation of wealth, the report had some sharp things to say about present American commercial policy.

TARIFF OBSTACLE

It criticized American handling of its tariff laws and said that on some consumer goods the United States tariff is 100 per cent of the product's value.

The high American tariff, aimed particularly at manufactured products, tended to force some plants to be located in the United States rather than in Canada.

"... It is the tariff obstacle which has had the greatest disruptive impact on Canadian economic growth."

Many Canadian manufacturers had to be content to supply only the relatively small Canadian market.

"Being geared, accordingly, to the needs of a comparatively small market, they labor under the cost disadvantages inherent in short and non-specialized production runs."

"The basic effect of United States commercial policy, therefore, has been to deprive potentially significant Canadian industries of the scale economies which would make a vital contribution to their competitiveness in world markets."

SOVIETS FORCE CHANGE

But the situation might change. There was a tendency in the U.S. to look towards more generous treatment of foreign producers. The U.S. had a position to maintain in the Western world.

Soviet economic power had increased at such a "remarkable pace as to call into question the traditional assumption of the automatic and indefinite maintenance of Western economic supremacy."

"Indeed the time for bold Western measures on the economic front may be fast approaching and it is difficult to see how the U.S.—given its overwhelming economic power and an understanding of the political and economic facts of international life—can long avoid taking the lead with strong unilateral easing of the conditions of access to the American market."

But that was only a long-range look. This did not preclude American protectionism gaining strength in the next few years.

On American farm policies, the report said the entrenched position of the American farm bloc, the magnitude of American surpluses and continuing high production "lend strong support to the view that over the short run at least, Canada may expect to trade in world agricultural markets increasingly distorted by U.S. farm policies."

Canada could "realistically expect the threat of further market losses in overseas countries as well as in the U.S." and the uncertainty of the future could impose "additional limitations on the production results achieved by Canadian farmers."

"Difficult adjustments are likely to confront Canadian agriculture in the next few years as consequence of U.S. agricultural policy."

pal employees upon their retirement from municipal service.

Amendments will also be made to the Public Services Medical Plan Act for government employees, which was proclaimed last summer.

"Bugs" in the new Municipal Act which showed up after it was hastily pushed through at the last session will be dealt with.

One change is expected to see the regulation of store closing hours given back to the municipalities.

The Throne Speech said the government intends at this session "to implement certain recommendations" of the Sloan Royal Commission report on forestry.

One is expected to include the creation of regional boards and a central advisory council to assist the government on forestry matters.

The government has already started this program with the appointment of Gordon Sloan as $50,000-a-year forestry adviser, in which position he would serve as chairman of the advisory council.

The Sloan report and his subsequent appointment are expected to be the hottest subjects at this session.

On the unemployment problem, which the CCF will also raise during the session, the Throne Speech said:

"My government will, on their own, and in co-operation with the national and municipal governments, do everything possible to increase employment and to assist those who, through reasons beyond their control cannot find employment."

The speech said "tight money" is continuing to have a harmful effect on the economy.

The government expects this year to receive the Crippen Wright engineering study on the hydro potential of the Columbia River, the Throne Speech disclosed.

It was also stated that soil surveys of the Columbia River basin undertaken by the International Joint Commission have now been completed.

PANIC, HEROISM IN CHIC AGO APARTMENT FIRE

'Babies Fell Like Raindrops'

CHICAGO (AP)—A fire and explosion spread havoc through a crowded south side apartment building early today and in the frenzy to escape many children were dropped from windows of the four-story building.

One infant died and at least six other children were unaccounted for. One man also was missing. At least 21 were injured, including nine children.

"The babies were falling like raindrops," said Jack McMillan, 31, who rushed to the scene where he said he caught five children dropped from windows. He fractured a thumb while catching one child.

There were numerous stories of heroism. One tenant, L. D. Dixon, 30, dropped to the ground from the third floor, then caught his wife, Albertan, 27, and their seven-year-old son, Harvey Lawrence, 30, threw his six children one after another into arms of spectators, and then rescued nine other children by dropping them from a window.

He will replace Rae Leslie. William Luhtala, president of Nanaimo County Real Estate Board, this week named Dr. Mladen G. Zorkin and Allan Armstrong to arrange for a strong Nanaimo delegation to attend the B.C. Association of Real Estate Boards convention in Victoria March 17-18.

Mr. Luhtala told the board the local multiple listing service now has $508,800 listed of a total of $1,275,000 listed under the B.C. multiple listing service.

Kinsmen Polio Fund Aids Island Children

Vancouver Island children share in the benefits of the B.C. Child Care and Polio Fund, now attempting to raise $275,000.

It is sponsored by the Kinsmen Clubs of B.C. to finance rehabilitation projects, and aid handicapped youngsters in every possible way.

Ken John, campaign chairman for the Vic-Van-isle Kinsmen Club in Victoria, said that although the rehabilitation centre is in Vancouver, which has almost half the population of the province, less than one-fifth of the children at the centre are from the metropolitan area.

Following is a list of the towns from which children come for aid.

Abbotsford, 3; Burns Lake, 1; Campbell River, 2; Chilliwack, 5; Cloverdale, 1; Cranbrook, 1; Courtenay, 2; Dawson Creek, 4; Duncan, 2; Hope, 2; Kamloops, 2; Kelowna, 1; Kitimat, 5; Ladysmith, 1; Lake Cowichan, 1; Langley, 1; Mission, 1; Nanaimo, 15; Nelson, 1; Oliver, 2; Parksville, 1; Princeton, 2; Prince Rupert, 2; Quesnel, 1; Salmon Arm, 10; Terrace, 4; Trail, 5; Vancouver area, 17; Victoria, 2; Whalley, 2.

The Kinsmen-sponsored fund also supports special speech therapy classes and a mobile hearing clinic for children.

Anyone knowing of a handicapped child or polio patient needing treatment may contact the local Kinsmen Club or fund headquarters in Vancouver for assistance, Mr. John said.
